NEW WAR TAX HITS INCOMES AND DRINK

JOHN BARLEYCORN AND WEALTH MUST TOTE THE BURDEN

Senate Finance Committee Agrees to Boost Taxes on Whisky $1 Per Gallon and Beer 50 Cents.

EXCESS PROFITS MAY RECEIVE FAVOR

Washington, D. C., July 31.—Increase of the pending $1,670,000,000 war tax bill to a total of $2,008,000,000 was decided upon today by the senate finance committee.

Increases on corporation's normal income taxes, on incomes of individuals of $15,000 and over, and a further increase of $1 per gallon on distilled spirits and fifty cents a barrel more on beer, with a few other minor tax increases, will make up the additional levy.

The committee decided to increase the present 2 per cent normal rate on corporate incomes to 6 per cent as against 4 per cent in the bill as originally drawn. It is expected to yield $162,000,000 additional revenue. The increase in surtax rates on individual incomes of $15,000 and more was estimated to raise from $25,000,000 to $36,000,000 additional. New excess profits taxes will be agreed upon later.

Surtaxes Not Decided.

The exact rate of the surtax increase on individual incomes of $15,000 and more were not decided. The income tax increases would result ian total levy upon corporate and individual incomes of the war of at least $1,040,700,000, as compared with a yield of $330,000,000 a year under existing law. The original bill provided for additional war levies upon all incomes of $543,700,000 and the committee's decision today would add at least $187,000,000 more. In view of the heavy increase for incomes it was stated that the committee might decide against a further increase on excess profits.

ENTIRE FAMILY OF BELGIANS IS SLAIN AS SPIES

London, July 31.—A dispatch received today by the wireless press from Amsterdaam says:

"The German authorities at Liege, Belgium, arrested, tried and sentenced to death within three days an influential Liege merchant named Groneret, his wife and their two daughters, aged 20 and 14 years, on the unproved charge of espionage.

"The father and mother were both shot to death in the presence of their daughters. The latter were offered their freedom if they revealed the names of their parents' accomplices. The girls refused, the elder stating: 'If we speak we might cause fifty people to be killed. We would rather die alone.'

"The younger girl was then tortured, outraged and also shot."

Summary of the Day's War News

Attacking early today on a twenty mile front in Belgium from the river Lys to within about ten miles of the coast, Gen. Sir Douglas Haig's troops, in conjunction with French forces, swept rapidly over the first line German positions and at many points reached the Teutonic second line. They took numerous prisoners as they advanced.

Dispatches from the front which reached London in mid-afternoon described the situation as entirely satisfactory from the entente viewpoint, with the drive still continuing, supported by the artillery which was being moved as the infantry went forward. Never in history, according to all accounts, has there been a more tremendous volume of shell poured upon a position under attack than that which assailed the German lines for days past. This marvelous concentration of gunfire manifested itself also in supplementary fashion after the drive started in what is reported to have been the weightiest barrage in the annals of warfare.

The field of the attack, beginning near

LITTLE FEAR OF FRESH DISORDERS

Prompt Action of Police at Bessemer Has Discouraged Violence.

Bessemer, Mich., July 31.—Although meetings of Industrial Workers of the World locals were to be held throughout the Gogebic iron range today for the purpose of pushing the attempt to tie up the iron industry in Michigan, authorities and mine officials were of the opinion that there would be no immediate recurrence of last night's disorders. The promptness with which Chief of Police Hult and a score of deputies broke up a meeting of industrial workers at Ironwood and the action of the state constabulary force in twice dispersing a procession of I. W. W.'s who were headed for the

MIGHTY RUSH IN GOTHAM TO JOIN HANDS AT ALTAR

New York, July 31.—Clerks in the marriage license bureau of the city clerk's office today predicted another record breaking number of applicants to wed. Although the number of licenses issued yesterday did not equal the high mark set on one of the days just previous to the war department notice that all men who marry after the start of the war would not be exempt from the draft, the number of marriages performed surpassed by one the former record. A revised list of the business done yesterday at the bureau shows licenses were issued to 351 couples. The previous record for a single day is 483 licenses. There were 150 couples married in the chapel in the municipal building yesterday, while on the day when 483 licenses were issued only 149 couples were married.

GETTING READY TO RECEIVE JAP VISITORS HERE

San Francisco, July 31.—A request from Mayor James Rolph, jr., for authority to arrange a reception made public today one fact that a Japanese mission to the United States will soon visit San Francisco on its way to Washington. The mission is headed by Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, former minister of foreign affairs. No date for the visit was disclosed.

PARASITES GET NOTICE TO QUIT COAST RESORTS

Copenhagen, July 31.—Stirred to wrath by a plague of summer resorters who have unduly added to the mouths to be fed on scanty rations and also brought stocks to smuggle home, two of the most prominent districts have decreed the expulsion of all strangers who have resided four weeks or more in a district. The cost of bread for guests has been doubled and the milk and butter rations have been cut to a third of that given the natives. Heavy rewards for the detection of food purchasers are promised.

PETITION THAT PHYSICIANS BE ALSO SELECTED

New York, July 31.—A petition was being circulated today in hospitals and among doctors asking that congress provide for a selective draft of the American doctors for military service. The petition also asks the exemption of "bona fide" physicians from the present draft law.

The proposed draft would take physicians and surgeons between the ages of 21 and 45 and would be carried out similar to the draft for the army. According to the heads of several hospitals here, the petition was sent from the Council of National Defense at Washington, which is supporting the plan.

GERMAN LINE IN FRANCE STRUCK FIERCE BLOWS

In Combined Movement Haig and Petain Launch New Offensive With Awful Burst of Artillery.

FOR DAYS BIG GUNS PREPARED THE WAY

British Front in France, July 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—The entente allied forces which launched their offensive this morning have advanced well beyond the shell-shattered front line German trenches.

In many places they have reached the second line defenses on a 20 mile front of attack, according to the early reports. The British and French troops went into battle under cover of what perhaps was the greatest barrage ever seen during the war.

The entente artillery is moving forward and the whole situation is satisfactory in every particular.

Between Dixmude and Boesinghe the attackers reported they had secured the two first lines of trenches after having fought over the most difficult terrain imaginable.

The British again have captured La Basseeville which they recently relinquished to the Germans.

British and French forces are facing a large concentration of German artillery and fresh troops which have been rushed up. The entente allies have established complete air superiority.

The entente military officials say the morale of the Germans here is not up to the old standard.

BISBEE CHASES LAWYER AIDING I.W.W. CLIENTS

Douglas, Ariz., July 31.—Fred H. Moore, an attorney for the Industrial Workers of the World, who last night was deported from Bisbee, scene of recent mine labor troubles, declared in a statement here today that he went to Bisbee armed with letters from Gov. Campbell and Sheriff Henry C. Wheeler, of Cochise county, to Mayor John E. Rickson, of Bisbee. He said the local committee, which has been in charge of the Warren district since the I. W. W. deportations, told him his presence was highly undesirable and laughed at him when he asked to see the mayor or consult his clients. He said shortly after he was taken to the train. He refused to discuss his further plans.

MAYOR OF CUBAN CITY IS SLAIN BY AN ASSASSAN

Havana, July 31.—Acting Mayor Florencio Guerra, of Cienfuegos, was assasinated last night as he entered his home on the outskirts of that city. The assassin fired five shots, all of which took effect.

Senor Guerra took possession of the city government of Cienfuegos on Monday afternoon, replacing Santiago Rey, who left for Havana on leave of absence. The Cienfuegos police report there is no clue as yet to the assassin.

IS ANYTHING LIKE THIS HAPPENING IN FT. WAYNE MARKETS

Chicago, July 31.—Prices of many vegetables are "going to smash" in the Chicago market, wholesalers declared today.

"South Water street is flooded and smothered with luscious ripe tomatoes," said Edward G. Davies, representing several shipping associations. "Boxes of twenty-two pounds sold today for 35 or 40 cents. The reason for the flood of tomatoes is the abnormally hot spell. They are ripening fast. Yesterday merchants were retailing baskets of tomatoes for 25 cents which today brought only 7½ cents."

Cucumbers which recently brought 15 cents each, retailed last week for 5 cents each and are now so plentiful that some dealers call them "penny goods."

URGES WILSON TO PREACH OF GREAT PERILS

London, July 31.—The address of Secretary of State Lansing at Madison barracks, New York, Sunday, is commented upon appreciatively. Some morning newspapers showing the clear vision with which the American government regards the main issue and conveying unanimously words of doom to the enemy. The Times regretting the "full truth is yet very imperfectly grasped by the masses of Americans, * * * their imagination yet unfired," despite the words of reason in President Wilson's and Secretary Lansing's expositions, refers to the popular confidence of the president and indirectly appeals to him to go on the stump for the purpose of awakening the people.

"It is not from the written but from the spoken word of the president that the significance of the troublesome conflict to them and their children must be brought home to the American hearts. And he alone commands the confidence of all. To his explanation and his summons they will respond as to none others."

CHANGE PAVING FOR SIX CITY STREETS

Bituminous Concrete Is Most Favored by the Taxpayers.

Changes were made in the original plans for paving of eleven city streets, when the board of works met in special session, Tuesday morning. Six of the eleven streets to be treated this year will be coated with bituminous concrete.

The pavings as ordered by the board follow: Coombs street, changed from brick to bituminous concrete; Garden street, bituminous concrete; Grace avenue, from bituminous concrete to sheet asphalt; Lake avenue, bituminous concrete; Kinniard avenue, from bituminous concrete to sheet asphalt; Liberty street, bituminous concrete; Osage street, from brick to bituminous concrete; LaSalle street, from Bituminous concrete to sheet asphalt; Webster street, from bituminous concrete to sheet asphalt, and Wildwood avenue, bituminous concrete.

Indecision among property owners along Wall street caused the board to decide to postpone the hearing on paving of that street until Wednesday afternoon.

COMPLETING REFECTORY.

Work to Be Pushed for Improving Weisser Park.

The roof has been placed on the new refectory building in Weisser park. Anderson Brothers, who have the contract for the building, hope to have the structure completed in two weeks more.

Work of filling the cellars where houses have been removed and of grading the land in the new Weisser Park addition will be carried on this week.

Grading in Selling park will start this week.

It has been decided to keep the comfort station in Reservoir park open during the evening for the rest of the summer.

NEED AN AUTO.

Park Board Will Request Machine for New Superintendent.

The park board decided at its Monday afternoon session to attempt to procure an automobile for use of Adolph Jaenicke, the new park superintendent. The controller will be asked for the money soon. The fact that the work of the city forester and park head carries Jaenicke all over the city makes the use of an automobile imperative, board members state.

Resolutions for paving of Anthony boulevard from Lake avenue to State boulevard were passed by the park board Monday afternoon. Work of laying the pavement will not start until next year, it was set out, as the waterworks department will be unable to furnish water piping for the street before that time.

Don't Like Smoke.

Residents of a south side neighborhood appeared before the board of works Monday afternoon and requested that steps be taken to stop the smoke nuisance from a factory in the district. The petitioners complained that life in their homes is unbearable this hot weather when the smoke clouds bear down upon them. The board of works approved the plat for the Ideal Garden acres on Monday afternoon.

Start Concreting.

The Wealsch Construction company, which has the contract for the concrete work at the Coombs street subway, started work of placing their forms Tuesday morning.

Gives Over a Quart of Blood to Save Brother

An uncommon surgical operation at the Lutheran hospital attracted considerable attention Tuesday morning as following the removal of the spleen from Chester Tourtellot, transfusion of over a quart of blood was yielded him by his brother, who came from Pennsylvania to witness the operation. Mr. Tourtellot has been ill for many months and his anaemic condition and the serious affection of the spleen made the operation particularly dangerous. It was necessary to try blood transfusion and the patient's brother offered his, giving over two pints, a quantity sufficient to probably save the sick man's life and weakening enough to send the other man to bed for several hours. Dr. Budd Van Sweringen performed the operation and Dr. Dean Metcalf, the physician in charge, and other physicians were present. The patient is about 30 years of age.

BRINKMAN GIVES ADVERTISING TALK

Principal Speaker at Weekly Meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

"How Advertising Helps Keep Down the Price of Things by Reducing the Selling Cost," was the subject of an interesting talk by Ernest F. Brinkman, of the Brinkman Paint store, Tuesday, at the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club. Ernest Allen, of the Federal Securities company, acted as chairman. Mr. Brinkman spoke in part as follows:

"What is the most common delusion in the business world today?

"The idea that advertising adds to the price of goods.

"Every now and then some merchant has the hardihood to say that he can sell his goods cheaper because he doesn't advertise. Every one who knows the A B C of business knows that this claim is impossible on its face. Yet it sounds plausible and such talk deceives millions of people.

"In the production and marketing of goods there are two necessary costs. One is the manufacturing cost; the other is the selling cost. And no way has ever yet been found by which either of these costs can be eliminated.

"Whether you buy farm products at a grocery store, or mill products at a dry goods store, or laboratory products at a drug store—whatever you buy at any store, be sure of one thing: The price includes the selling cost. It must, else the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer and the salesman could not live.

"And just as surely as there are always two items of cost, the manufacturing and selling, just so surely are there only two ways in which the price of goods can ever be reduced.

"One is by economies in manufacturing cost. The other is by economies in selling cost.

"Of course, it isn't easy to cut manufacturing cost without cutting the quality. But in modern times a way has been found to cut selling cost—and its name is Advertising.

"Advertising is like a stright line: the shortest distance between two points—the producer and the consumer. It cuts out the grades, curves and the angles. It makes a drop of ink do the work of a salesman. Bear in mind that a demand and advertising creates this demand in the simplest, most direct and least expensive way. No other sales method can equal it in magnitude of return for a minimum of cost.

"And the big returns from advertising also cut down the manufacturing cost—that's another saving. Increased volume of production always means a decrease in the unit cost of production through better and more efficient manufacturing methods.

"The Association of National Advertisers has recently been gathering some remarkable facts and figures on this subject. They show how one after another of the big advertisers of the country have been able to reduce the price of their product or else to improve the quality at no increase in price. It is a significant fact that nationally advertised goods are the only product which, as a class, have not tended to rise in price during the past few years.

"Countless causes are working today to force prices up. We all know this by sad experience. Against all these forces one force only is working to keep prices down—and its name is Advertising."

Such has been the case since the introduction of Ironated Herbs with Pepsin, in this city. Hundreds of people who have taken this modern medicine are telling of the great relief and new strength gained from its use. A statement of exceptional interest is that made recently by Mr. Watters, who resides at 124 East Main street, and who is a valued employe of the Nickel Plate railroad, with whom he has been for the past seven years. Mr. Watters is a man of the highest integrity. He has lived in Fort Wayne all his life and has a host of friends. He said:

"I feel like I was another person, since taking Ironated Herbs with Pepsin. This medicine has just done me a world of good. Before I heard of Ironated Herbs, I was in a very much run-down condition. The food that I could eat would not digest well. It was all I could do to get rest at night and I would often get up in the morning feeling as if I had not been to bed at all.

"A friend of mine told me about this new medicine, Ironated Herbs with Pepsin, and suggested that I get a bottle and give it a trial. I did not think it would do much for me after I had tried so many other remedies without results, but I went ahead and did as my friend told me.

"I am surely grateful for the benefits which Ironated Herbs has brought me. I feel twenty per cent stronger and more buoyant. My appetite has returned and my food tastes good again. I sleep better and seem to have new life and energy. My work is lighter to me and I do not get so awful tired out any more. I am so much better in every way, that I can heartily recommend Ironated Herbs to anyone who is suffering as I was.

Ironated Herbs with Pepsin is a preparation that brings new life and strength to a nervous and run-down system. It puts red blood in your veins, increases the appetite and aids digestion. It is an excellent tonic to be taken at this time of the year.—Advertisement.

ALLEN COUNTY RAISES $9,000 FOR WAR FUND

Indiana Is Leading State in Union in This Project, Says S. A. Callahan.

Allen county achieved a notable record when it raised approximately $9,000 for the Catholic war fund and helped put Indiana, the leading state in the union in this project. Stephen A. Callahan, grand knight of the K. of C., made this announcement at the final meeting Monday evening.

Maurice Niezer presided and spoke of the forces helping to make the campaign in Allen county a great success. He told of the liberal response which was met everywhere by the committees.

Mr. Callahan, who spent most of the time in Indianapolis, gave a brief summary of the results in the state and are as follows:

Indianapolis, $15,000; Fort Wayne, $9,000; Evansville, $5,500; Lafayette, $4,500; Terre Haute, $4,000; South Bend, $3,500; Gary, $3,000; Vincennes, $3,000; Kokomo, $2,575; East Chicago, $2,500; Hammond, $2,500; Marion, $1,375; Laporte, $1,125; Logansport, $1,500; Huntington, $1,000; Decatur, $1,000; Peru, $1,000; New Albany, $1,000; Logootee, $1,000; Washington, $1,000; Crawfordsville, $750.

Kortholl, $1,440; St. Patrick's, A. A. Serva, $1,082; St. Peter's, Julian F. Franke, $676.90; St. Paul's, Edmund C. Nichter, captain, $436.50; Precious Blood, Robert E. LUNIGRAMS

FRESH EGGS BY AUTO.

HENRY, Mo.—Will Buck, of Trenton, went out into the country in his machine to get fresh eggs for his wife to put down for the winter. He says some of them he can't swear by, but one he knows is fresh. Arriving home, he found a wayside hen, flying into his machine unnoticed to escape the wheels, had made a nest out of his coat and laid an egg. The engine drowned the cackle.

FIREMEN RESCUE BOY.

CHEST, Tenn.—The fire department of Decatur, ten miles away, was called here to rescue Jimmy Blon, young son of J. Blon, sr., from the high roof of his father's barn. Jimmy was trying out a new glider when a sudden gust carried him onto the barn roof and blew the glider away while he clung to the ridge pole. Jommy's father is now using the glider to repair his windmill.

MISHAP COSTS LEG.

JIMSON, Ga.—In using his wooden leg as a lever in prying his auto out of a ditch, Gerald Atkins broke it. Although he got the machine back onto the road just as the leg broke, Atkins had to wait seven hours till another auto came and towed him in. He couldn't operate the gear and brake pedals with only one leg. He will not be able to use his machine for a month, having to send to New York for a new leg.

LOSES LIBERTY BOND.

EDGEHILL, Utah.—Astor Asquith has appealed to the postmaster to help him establish proof of his subscription to the Liberty Loan. Asquith's young son, aged two, swallowed his Liberty Loan button, and one of the pigs, loose in the barnyard, ate up the bond which had dropped from Asquith's pocket while he was pumping water for the cattle. He claims it was a $200 bond.

NEW USE FOR AUTO.

ASHLEY, Ala.—Thornton Dyke is cooling his groundfloor bedroom with his automobile. He drives the machine right up to the open window, disconnects part of the engine, and reverses the fan, using it to blow cool air into the room. At first the odor of gasoline bothered Mrs. Dyke, but when Thornton told her it would drive away moths she didn't mind it any more.

SNEEZERS VOTE WET.

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill.—The Hay Fever league has organized an agitation against voting this state dry. League members had club privileges in the town brewery refrigerating room where they played cards and read the papers. The secretary says the members are not opposed to the temperance movement, but it will be an economic hardship to have to go north every summer instead of getting relief by cold storage.

Don't wait. Send your dry cleaning early. Peerless. Phone 6095.

RECEPTION TO BE TENDERED PASTOR

Rev. J. H. Bosch and Family to Be Honor Guests at Event Wednesday Night.

As an appreciation for his untiring efforts during his twenty years of service as pastor of St. John's Reformed church, a farewell reception will be tendered him and his family Wednesday evening at the church on West Washington street.

Rev. Bosch and his family leave the city soon. The faithful minister tendered his resignation several months ago and after a vacation of several months will assume charge of another congregation. His future plans have not been definitely settled, but it is understood that he will take charge of a larger congregation than the one he is leaving.

The committee on arrangements for the reception Wednesday evening has planned an interesting and fitting program. All the members of the congregation have been invited to take part in the reception as well as many of the hundreds of friends of the family.

CHICAGO BATHERS BATTLE THE POLICE

Resist Ejectment From a Forbidden Stretch of Fashionable Beach.

Chicago, July 31.—Attempts of the police to drive bathers from Oak street beach, which is situated along fashionable Lake Shore drive, caused a riot last night in which several thousand people participated.

A city ordinance forbids bathers to use the beach, except between the hours of 4 a. m. and 8 a. m., but the excessive heat drove many into the lake in defiance of the law. A patrol wagon load of policemen advanced to the water's edge and commanded the bathers ashore.

They simply laughed at the officers. Then one policeman removed his coat and waded out. He managed to seize one of the bathers and drag her ashore. This was the signal for a riot. The spectators closed in on the police, battering several of them.

The crowd surged about the police, hampering their movements and howling threats against them and the residents of "The Drive."

Eight persons were arrested, including three girls, who were taken to the police station in their bathing suits.

Reinforcements arrived, but the bathers won the day and remained in the water until late at night.

PRESIDENT WINS A POINT.

President Wilson contrived to impress a majority of the conferees on the food control bill with what he believes ought to be done and the measure will be reported back with acceptance of the house provision for a single food director to be appointed by the president without confirmation. That is a big gain, but it apparently does not bring the fight in the senate to an end. Gore, of Oklahoma, and Reed, of Missouri—both of whom have bitterly fought the house bill—promise further trouble and Gore threatens a filibuster. It is believed ,nevertheless, that the bill can be enacted into law despite the kicking and obstructions of the wilful few.

The food bill is an extraordinary measure designed to meet the emergencies of an extraordinary situation. Under normal conditions such an expedient would not be thought of; but with the country at war in a great struggle that will strain all its resources as it has similary strained other nations engaged in it, no expedients can be ignored that will conserve and increase the strength of the nation and improve its position in the conflict. To control food, increase production, prevent waste, forestall rapacity, mend marketing practices and correct distribution, all to the single end that our own people shall have plenty free from extortion and that our allies may be assisted to the best of our whole ability to meet their needs are comprehended the fundamental purpose of food control. There can be no doubt that a single director with broad authority will be able to obtain better results in a more satisfactory way than a board of three or of any number. In matters of judgment it may often be true that "three heads are better than one," but in purely executive practices this does not hold. We have just had an illuminating example of a divided authority attempting to establish and execute plans for the meeting of a great national emergency. What developed in respect of the ship-building program might and doubtless would develop in the business of food control were this function to be shared by a board of three.

It will better serve the country and the country's allies and prove in all ways more satisfactory in its relations to the people here to have this thing administered by one man and that man Herbert C. Hoover. Mr. Hoover is the one man who by common consent of all persons everywhere is fitted by native capacities and special experience to undertake the work for America. He is the man upon whom the president has fixed his choice. Under the bill as passed by the house and agreed upon by the conferees the appointment and removal of the food director will rest entirely with the president. If Mr. Hoover or any other should fail to realize a reasonable expectation, should attempt to carry things with a high hand, or in any way make a mess of his dictatorial office there would be and could be no embarrassment of the president's authority to deal promptly and rigorously with the situation.

We believe the great mass of the people of this country are in favor of a director and consider Mr. Hoover the man for the job. The senators who attempt to further obstruct the course of legislation designed to meet one of the most critical of the country's needs in this portentous crisis of the nation will have the people to deal with. The Gores and the Reeds and the Vardamans and the Stones of the United States senate will not escape. Remembrance of their conduct in this hour of national trial and peril will be saved up against them.

ROUNDING UP SLACKERS.

Because there has been no visible activity since June 5 to hunt out the slackers who dodged registration for military service on that historic day two months ago doubtless most of that species of delinquent have considered themselves obscure and secure. But the government has not been idle meanwhile. The various agencies attached to or employed by the department of justice have been busy and the probability is that few slackers have escaped notice.

At all events the announcement comes from Washington that the department of justice is now ready to proceed with rigor against those who, being of conscriptive age, neglected to register. Prosecution under the selective conscription law will not be a trifling affair. The law provides severe penal consequences besides which the slacker may be made to do his bit under well designed compulsions from which there is not much chance of getting away. The order from Washington is that persons who should have registered and did not shall now be registered and that against them criminal proceedings shall forthwith be instituted. They are to be lodged in jail if they are unable to furnish heavy bond. After having been registered slackers will be given numbers and, if physically fit, will be subject to call for the first draft to the national army.

There ought to be uncommon diligence to get slackers of this kind on the rolls. It will be an injustice to all of the near ten millions of young men who did register and a greater injustice to those who may be selected for service that any able-bodied slackers should escape their portion of the general liability. Poltroonry is despicable under any circumstances, but it becomes an offense of peculiar flagrancies when it skulks and hides or runs away from those duties of manhood and those obligations of free citizenship that the vast majority of men are too brave and too proud as well as too patriotic to attempt to evade.

The federal department of justice has therefore commanded a diligent hunt for slackers and a rigorous prosecution of all who are caught. No doubt there here and there is a case of a man who either from ignorance of the law or by reason of circumstances not in his control failed to register. Reasonable proof of this will most probably gain all deserved leniency. Others have been influenced not to register. In such cases not the delinquent but those who worked upon him to default his duty should be the object of the law's rigors.

There can be no defense of the purpose to build exposed stations for the storage of explosive oils above ground within the city limits. That the council consents to it is merely because there is no way to prevent the council from consenting to it. On every account that has to do with public safety the plan is condemned and is abandonment dictated. Considerations of the security of human life and the safety of property are perhaps paramount to any design to promote competition in the oil trade—if that laudable object be really the thing sought in sweeping aside the safe practices of years in this city.

Comments provoked from London and elicited in Washington do not indicate that Chancellor Michaelis has made much of a hit with his speech. The guile of German statecraft and diplomacy have become pretty well known the world around during the past three years and Dr. Michaelis will have to employ some medium beside words to detach this country or any other from the general purpose now in hand to make the world safe for democracy.

It will take more than pleading and imploring to get the slacking, panic-stricken, cowardly and bought-up elements of the Russian armies awake to a sense of their infamy. Kerensky and his generals appear to have the idea, if reports from the front are trustworthy. Those who won't stand to be shot in the breast appear to be getting it in the back—which perhaps is no worse, though not looking so well.

It is planned that Indiana shall seed three million acres to wheat for next year's crop. That will be some grand—for next year is going to be the big year that will put fat on the batting average for the next five. Three short crops in consecutive years is just about unheard of and we already have had two.

The slogan is can what you can can and pack what you can pack. The rest of it should be dried, evaporated, dessicated or otherwise treated for home storage in the fashion you know most about. Corollary to this, do it early and do it plenty. The stuff is about to spoil and America has nothing eatable this year to send to the bow-wows.

The president convinced the food bill conferees that he is right about the main point. That should have gone without argument. The mere fact that the principal trouble-makers are Gore and Reed should have been convincing enough.

Congress has had the food bill but eight or ten weeks and with the dog days now well along and no prospect of getting away soon, with no campaigns at home to give anxiety and with really nothing to do but to yawp and yammer, may have it for another eight or ten weeks.

"Fare, please! All the glad ones, and the sad ones; all the good ones, and the bad ones—get on here!"

Tomorrow.

We live too much in our Tomorrow,
The day that never comes;
We reap in it, we beg, we borrow,
We pay our tax on joy and sorrow,
And long, and long for that Tomorrow—
Tomorrow never comes!

Tomorrow's flowers, Tomorrow's singing—
Sweet laughter runs to tears—
Tomorrow—think what it is bringing!—
Tomorrow—hope is ever springing
Up just to hear Tomorrow's singing,
When laughter runs to tears!

We hope—the hope dies out in fever—
The Wide Eyes look in ours—
We pray, and then we hear forever
The wings of sighs—Ah, God, deliver,
And make us fearless by that fever
To face those Eyes in ours!

Tomorrow's dawn is never given
To break upon us all;
We wake before Tomorrow's heaven
Wakes for us, and our lives are riven—
Though we implore, the Light is given
Never unto us all!

Louisville Courier Journal says: "By calling a number of dictionaries into consultation it is found that you can pronounce it "canton-ment,' 'cantonement,' 'cantunment,' 'cantoon-ment,' etc. You can find plenty of persons who will disagree with any of these pronunciations, but if you adopt the philosophy of the girl who didn't know whether 'paradise' was spelled with an 's' or a 'c' so wrote it 'heaven' you will call it the 'camp' and avoid controversy."

War Measure

WE HAVE THE RIGHT TO CRITICIZE GOVERNMENT BUT SHOULD WE DO SO?

By REM. A. JOHNSTON.

Boll weevil is a pest all right—nevertheless, he is a bosom friend in harmlessness compared with the man you frequently meet who is always ready to claw up the sidewalk in his earnestness to prove that the government has made a fool of itself, and that anybody, given a chance, would do a much better job bossing a country of one hundred millions than the men who have been selected for their work.

This sort of pesteriferous human insect is always pro-German in his sympathies, and he is almost as harmful in his operations as the "good American" who "will never believe" that the Germans have committed such little atrocities as the cutting off of Belgian babies' hands, and the violating of the entire womanhood of Belgium and northern France.

Of course, America would not be America if free speech were not permitted on all subjects. Sedition itself has been tolerated in our midst full often because few people are willing to risk the time and trouble and family enmity to be incurred for reporting those who are not loyal citizens. Free speech will probably always be permitted to an almost unbelievable extent, as may be determined by the recent rulings of Justice Hendrick of the New York supreme court.

The right of a citizen to criticise the government was upheld by an opinion which assuredly carries a great deal of weight with it. Justice Hendrick remarks that a misconception "has arisen of the distinction between a criticism of the law and an incitement to violate the law. The two are not the same but have been confused because so many people who attacked the law, notably the military service act, were known to be potential violators and eager to incite others to do so while attempting to stay within the letter of their legal rights."

The justice's decision, in one instance, set free a man who had been sentenced to serve thirty days in prison for distributing circulars on which were printed extracts from the "Constitution" and "Declaration of Independence," with the question, "Does our government live up to these principles?"

On this point an eastern critic remarks: "It is well for all to bear in mind that the honest criticism of executives, legislators and other officers and of fundamental and statutory law, is both lawful and necessary if we are to make any progress. At the same time it will be unfortunate if Justice Hendrick's opinion is construed by New York's anarchists and other disturbers to mean they can go ahead. The wise will not take advantage of what they know to be their rights, and will curb their desire to attempt to obstruct the military law, even when they believe they can 'get away with it.'"

Naturally the point comes home to a great many people who are not pleased with this, that, or the other thing that is done by the government. It is very easy to set up a critical, carping, fault-finding sort of mental condition, and at the first opportunity fly into violent rabies when discussing the acts of the governmental heads. The class of man that yowls and yammers for things he does not understand, and who continually converts himself into a wishing factory over propositions which are entirely over his head and out of reach, shades towards that dangerous anarchy which is certainly not protected by Justice Hendrick's opinion.

Probably the best attitude for all of us is a patient acceptance of certain conditions which have been placed on us by a war so obviously necessary that there is no argument on that score at all. We know that the light of dawn always follows the darkest night, and that action and reaction are immutable working laws in the hand of God Almighty. We have no right to deny the earnest labors of our leaders. They may not be all wise—but certainly they are serving us in such a wholehearted spirit that it becomes us best to give them our honest support rather than blows and curses. And those who are German by instinct—who still believe that Germany can do no wrong though the gray-green armies of the Imperial Monster rape the womanhood of the whole world—ought to be invited to subside until the men of the world finish the work that is cut out for them.

GOVERNMENT BUYS DIRECT.

(Des Moines Capital.)

Criticism is being directed against the national council of defense because some of its members are connected with companies that receive orders for war supplies.

The public is apt to gain the impression that the men on the council are in a position to act both as buyer and seller in the war emergency.

This is far from the truth. The council of national defense has absolutely no authority to buy for the government. Its only function is to investigate, report and to make recommendations.

The only men on the council with power to act are the secretaries of the departments of war, navy, commerce, labor and agriculture. And they act, not as a council, but by virtue of their positions in the cabinet.

The men who are associated with the cabinet officers on the council of national defense, such as Julius Rosenwald, Daniel E. Willard, Howard E. Coffin, and others, have no authority whatsoever. They are merely advisers.

These men have performed a valuable service for the government since the war started. The public little appreciates the extent of their service. By their efforts and their influence they have induced corporations to sell to the government at surprisingly low figures. But they have not done the actual buying themselves. Every dollar that is spent at Washington is spent under the watchful eye of a government official.

Speakers in and out of congress attempt to show how one firm, in which a member of the council or one of its committees is interested, received a government contract at a price above that bid by a competing firm. Favoritism is charged.

In no instance, so far as we have been able to learn, have speakers proved that the interests of the government have not been fully protected or that government officials did not enter into deals with their eyes open. Speakers have held up comparative figures in an attempt to alarm the people, but they have not pointed out that "satisfactory basis" is often more important than "lowest price" in the awarding of a contract.

HASN'T BEGUN TO FIGHT YET.

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

Stephen Lauzanne, French consul general in this country, challenges the alarmist statements of the New York Tribune correspondent that one-eyed Frenchmen are being sent back to the ranks; that boys of the 1918 class have been forced into the trenches; that France has been bled white; that she is at her last gasp; that she can hold out no longer than September.

If doubt remains as to whether consul or correspondent is right, the daily work of the French along the battle line or a few German prisoners might be introduced as an exhibit. The correspondent pleads that he resorted to sensationalism to prompt American aid for France. That is the excuse that might justify any distortion of the truth favorable to the Germans and discouraging to allied prospects.

The consul might have paraphrased John Paul Jones to the effect that France has not yet begun to fight.

That bird life is increasingly menaced owing to the high cost of meat and other commodities is revealed through the discovery that foreigners in this country are slaughtering them in such unusual quantities that the regular game wardens are unable to cope with the situation.

It has been estimated that the crops now destroyed in this country by insects and rodents would feed the people of Belgium, and as birds are the chief enemies of these pests it becomes nothing less than a great patriotic duty to safeguard and preserve these policemen of the farms and gardens. Every good citizen ought to heed the plea of the Audubon societies, and not only cause the prosecution of all those who kill birds, but aid in conserving their lives by means of food and drink.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

KNEW HER END WAS NEAR.

Long-Suffering Woman Gets Out of Bed and Summons Relatives.

Wabash, Ind., July 31.—After having suffered agony for weeks and having been unable to speak scarcely above a whisper, Mrs. Henry Laudenbarger's faculties returned to her early today. All pain left her, she arose from her bed with only slight assistance, directed the arrangement of the bed clothing, again lay down and a few minutes later closed her eyes and died peacefully.

Death was not unheralded. Mrs. Laudenbarger knew the flame of life was flickering out. When the pain left her she summoned the relatives from an adjacent room and told them that death was near. She cautioned them lest they become demonstrative, and said that she was prepared for the end. Then she arose from her bed, stood until it had been rearranged, again lay down, and, bidding all goodby, died.

FOR DRASTIC LIQUOR LAW.

Winona Meeting Urges National Prohibition.

Warsaw, Ind., July 31.—The Christian citizenship institute, in session at Winona Lake, passed resolutions which were sent to President Wilson, urging him to use his influence to have a law enacted that would forbid the manufacture, sale or shipment of liquor.

The Rev. John R. Harris, superintendent of the Dry Federation of Pennsylvania, in a temperance address said that before Indiana took a stand toward prohibition the state had 165 murders in one year, which was reduced the next year to sixty-four. He said that in Greek the word "idios" meant a man who could not vote, and that the word "idiot" was derived from "idios." He said the term was one which should be applied to all in this country who did not avail themselves of the opportunity of voting.

WILL EXAMINE 480 MEN.

Huntington, Ind., July 31.—Convinced that the calling of 200 per cent of the county's quota of 175 men will not provide the 175 required, the Huntington county exemption board announced this afternoon the calling of 480 men for physical examinations, to begin Monday, August 6. The notices will be mailed Wednesday of this week and dated so the second and third days' men will have received five days' notice. Two sets of workers are now preparing the lists to be posted Wednesday. The board, two of whom are physicians, has appointed two extra medical examiners, and the four men will attempt to handle 160 men a day. Many of the first 500 men drawn have enlisted, many others are physically unfit, and the larger part of the remainder are married men, the sole support of families.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED.

Lagrang, Ind., July 31.—One hundred chickens that had been stolen from the farm of Dr. Milo Cummings Saturday night have been returned. The tenant on the farm notified Dr. Cummings, who in turn called the sheriff. The tenant said he believed James Smith, of near Wolcottville, was the guilty party and while a search of Smith's premises did not reveal any chickens that could be identified it did reveal a horse collar that had been stolen some time ago. Smith was arrested and yesterday morning was arraigned before 'Squire Hissong. He was given his liberty for the time being. In the meantime the stolen chickens were returned.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

Decatur, Ind., July 31.—A new schoolhouse costing approximatly $25,000 will be erected in St. Mary's township. Trustee E. W. France is advertising for the sale of a block of bonds on August 18 which will furnish funds sufficient to erect a modern building. The plans as being prepared will include seven rooms, four on the second floor for the high school and three on the first floor for the grades, with three sections in the basement.

GOOD WHEAT RECORD.

Bluffton, Ind., July 31.—James Hesher, superintendent of the county farm, reported yesterday afternoon that he had just harvested 803 bushels of wheat off 25 acres, an average of better than 32 bushels to the acre. This is considered an excellent record. Four hundred bushels was brought to the Stafford mill to make flour for the inmates. This flour will supply the farm for a year and the remainder of the wheat will be kept for a reserve. It is in the best of condition.

MILKED OTHER FELLOW'S COWS.

Portland, Ind., July 31.—John M. Starr pleaded guilty to an unusual petit larceny charge in the court of Justice of the Peace A. G. Lewis. In an affidavit filed by Arch Lee, Starr is accused of milking cows other than his own, which were pastured on the farm of Lee's father-inlaw, Frank McLaughlin. He was bound over to the circuit court. Starr is a wealthy stock buyer and farmer and is well known.

STATE COMMISSION MAY DECIDE.

Van Wert, O., July 31.—The state utilities commission may ultimately be called up to decide the question of whether the Van Wert Gas Light company will be granted a new franchise and contract by the city council. It is understood that the proposed franchise will be refused by the city council.

2,000 MORE FISH.

Huntington, Ind., July 31.—Huntington county has received its third shipment of fish from the state hatcheries. The fish, all fingerlings, were placed in Clear Creek, Rock Creek and the Wabash river by the Huntington County Fish and Game association, which for three years has been stocking the streams of Huntington county.

VICTIM OF MOWER ACCIDENT.

Angola, Ind., July 31.—Marcus Miller, a farmer of near Crooked Lake, is dead of injuries suffered Friday when he was thrown off a mower in his hay field. The knives almost severed both of his legs. Edward Hunter, age twenty-seven, of Fort Wayne, was drowned in Lake James, Sunday.

GIVES BIG SUM TO AID SINGLE TAX MOVEMENT

Washington, July 31.—A gift of $25,000 by Mrs. Joseph Fels, of Philadelphia, widow of the millionaire single tax advocate, was announced today by the committee on the high cost of living, holding its national conference as the first step in a campaign to raise $250,000 to effect readjustments in the country's land holding system. At the opening sessions speakers urged that a tax of 1 per cent be levied on all land and 2 per cent on all unimproved land. GET BAD CROP NEWS.

Regina, Sask., July 31.—Reports received by the provincial department of agriculture from the crop correspondents throughout the province made public today indicate that the wheat yield of the province will average between ten and fifteen bushels to the acre. From every part of the province come reports that rain is needed and in some sections the crops are so badly burned that rain would do no good.

DAY'S EFFORTS WITH HOOKS ARE FRUITLESS

Searchers of Body of Edward Huber Use Dynamite Without Results.

An entire day's effort to recover the body of Edward Huber, of Fort Wayne, who was drowned at Lake James, Sunday afternoon, with the use of grappling hooks, were fruitless. The searchers for the body resumed their work Monday morning, after trying to locate the body Sunday evening.

A large number of men worked all day Monday with the hooks. They were compelledto get an extension of rope on the hooks as it is said that the depth of the water in the hole into which he fell is ninety feet.

Monday evening at 7 o'clock the searchers resorted to the use of dynamite in an effort to make the body come to the top. This means proved also to be without results as late Tuesday morning no word had been received that the body has risen.

The searchers state that the hole into which the body is believed to be caught is filled with logs and wood on the bottom, making it a difficult matter to hook the body.

If the body does not come to surface by the use of dynamite it will take nine days before it will come to the top, say the searchers.

"We have all the business we can handle and are now behind with the work to the extent of $1,000,000," said S. F. Bowser, the head of the big oil tank and pump works on East Creighton avenue, yesterday. "This is the vacation season and the absence of a number of our factory and office employes adds to the difficulty of meeting the demands on the plant, but the season will soon be over and we will be able, we believe, to get back to nearly normal conditions by September," continued President Bowser. The factory is working a night and day shift and one of the departments is busy all the time, not suspending operations for an hour during the working days of the week.

SOCIETY

The wedding of Miss Pauline Margaret Werkman and Mr. Edward Charles Salomon will take place Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride in South Lafayette street. Rev. Jacob Miller will be the officiating minister and members of the families of the bride and groom will be present. It had been intended to have a large church wedding, but owing to the bride's brother, Fred, being called away as he had enlisted in the army, change of plans was necessary. The wedding date was set for this week, but even that didn't prove early enough for the young soldier, as he had to leave a day or so ago. Miss Werkman is very well known, and she has been the soprano singer in St. John's Reformed church for the past ten years. Miss Elsie Heck is to be the only attendant, but she will be maid of honor. The groom is a prosperous farmer who has just built a new home on the Dupont road, north of the city, and the bride and groom will begin housekeeping at once. Both bride and groom are exceptionally fine young people.

Six Girls Who Reduce Cost of Trip Expenses

Where and how to spend this summer's vacation in an inexpensive and healthy way is a problem that is troubling many heads at the present moment. Almost every one needs and wants a change of air and surroundings in the summer. But with the present high cost of living it is indeed a vexatious question as to how one can best obtain it.

Yet every year there are scores of sensible people who do take a holiday, and with very little expense, too. What has been done before can be done again, always.

So those of you who really want to have a vacation at the smallest cost possible will do well to find out how others have managed in previous years.

Six girls, employed in clerical positions in a big manufacturing house, had but little money to spend on holiday making.

But they felt the need of a change after the year's hard work in the office, so they finally decided on the following arrangement:

Three of the girls had younger sisters who owned bicycles. Two of the others found they could borrow wheels from friends, and the last member of the party rented a second-hand one for the two weeks' holiday at small cost.

Thus equipped with a bicycle apiece, they quickly collected an outfit for the bicycle trip.

A small bag of rubber (something like a laundry bag) held a change of underwear, a tooth brush, hair brush and comb, soap and towels. This bag was suspended over each girl's shoulders like a knapsack. Each one had two thick blankets and a raincoat and hat, wrapped up in a large piece of oilcloth. This was strapped in a tight bundle back of the seat on the wheel. In front of the handlebars was a small basket, which was used to hold any food they wished to take with them.

So fitted, they started off, clad in warm bloomer suits and ready for all emergencies, with a dog belonging to one of the girls trotting along as mascot.

They would ride until they got tired, then they would dismount and rest in a field for awhile. Whenever they passed through a town or village they would fill up their food baskets, for fear they might not reach another town before their appetite threatened to overcome them.

At night they generally slept in some farmhouse, whose owners were willing to put them up at a small price.

Two or three times they spent the night in deserted barns, but more often still they slept out in the fields.

When this happened they selected a big tree to afford them some protection in case it rained.

Then they would spread out the big oilcloth on the ground, wrap themselves up in their blankets, pull up the rest of oilcloth over them to keep off dew and damp and then they would sleep soundly with their heads on their bags as pillows.

How they slept and how they ate during all that two weeks!

They came back brown as berries and strong as young oxen from the effect of the sun, wind and rain.

Their dog acted as watchman at night and ran along behind their wheels in the day.

They washed in streams and ponds of the countryside. And each one voted it the very best vacation she had ever had and the cheapest.

You may be interested in some such holiday yourselves. It will keep you but in the open and will build up your strength in a marvelous way.

CHEMISES HAVE SUDDENLY TURNED INTO PETTICOATS.

Chemises have suddenly turned into petticoats with shoulder straps.

It is a good notion; we're strong for simplified dressing these busy days.

With the chemise extended and of greater width the petticoat is no longer necessary. Also, as dress skirts are narrow, we scarcely have room for shimmy and skirt.

These new spreading breadths are composed of crepe de chine or are offered in Italian silk. Do not fall for the plain weave, which will shrink and transform your little undie into something about as generous as an umbrella cover. The Italian silk is perfectly O. K. if it is the new weave with the openwork stripe.

Little lace is used on these new models, and pin tucks or embroidery furnish the most of the decorative qualities.

Philippine undies are attractive, particularly in the new crepes, in which val and cushion laces are used.

CELERY, APPLES AND NUTS MAKE TEMPTING SALAD.

Wash, pare and cut into cubes six large apples. To them add a cupful of nut meats. Save some half kernels of nuts, chopped celery and two cupfuls of English walnuts to place on top when salad is mixed. Make a dressing as follows: Two eggs, one-half cupful sugar, one-quarter cupful vinegar, two tablespoonfuls butter and a tablespoonful of flour. Cook all together in a double boiler, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. When the mixture thickens remove from stove and beat five minutes. When cold stir it into apple mixture. Serve in salad dishes, using half kernals of nuts to decorate. Garnish with tender celery leaves. The mayonnaisse can be thinned with cream.

THE YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHER IN THE UNITED STATES TELLS WHY SHE STILL LOOKS YOUNG AND FEELS LIKE A GIRL IN HER TEENS

"I'll Never Be Old, Even if I Live to One Hundred," Declared Mrs. Lawson, Who at the Age of 44 Looks as Trim and Youthful as Her Granddaughter — Tells the Secret of Preserving Her Youthful Appearance.

Which is grandmother?. Can you guess?

Staff Special.

Chicago, July 28.—Hark to the amazing story of America's youngest grandmother:

Name: Mrs. Laura B. Lawson, 42 Eastwood avenue.

Age, 44.

Married at 13.

Daughter born at 14.

Granddaughter born at 30.

Passes as sister of her granddaughter and looks it.

Says she'll never be old if she lives one hundred years.

How's that? Has America any other grandmother whose record equals this one?

The daughter is Mrs. E. J. Doharty and the granddaughter Miss Hazel Doharty. Can you guess which is which in the picture?

Here is Mrs. Lawson's recipe, as she has practiced it, for keeping young:

"I've always been active. I've always done my own housework, not because I had to but because I loved to. I've studied the kind of foods that make strength without making fat. I'm a crank about cleanliness, outside and in; you can't keep skin and body clean without it is cared for from inside and outside.

"I never sit around and mope. I went in for some club and charity work. I rest one hour each day, not even allowing the family to intrude on that hour.

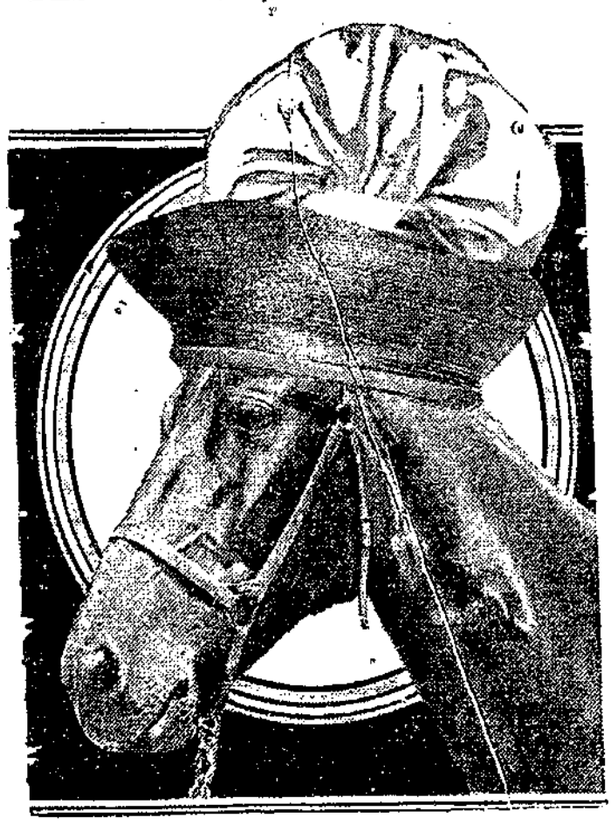
"I've always associated with young people. I won't let them put me in a fireside group.

"I'm not nervous. By refusing to worry over little troubles I've been ready for big ones when they came.

"I'm fond of dancing; I swim, too, and play tennis. I don't give my muscles a chance to get old and that keeps my mind alert."

Mrs. Lawson, in the picture, is in the center. On her right is her daughter, who looks older, while on her left is her granddaughter.

JUST GLIMPSE THIS NEW BONNET DESIGNED FOR YOUR BLACK BEAUTY



By BETTY BROWN'S BROTHER.

PADUCAH: Here's a new Sunday hat for Milady Black Beauty; if it's short on design, why it's long on heat duty. She regrets not the lack of all flowery adorning, for it's just the chapeau for a hot August morning. Note her look of content as she stands with her sisters, at the church hitching post where the sun beats and blisters. For when mares go to meeting, all curried and shining, it's the mare with the cap that starts envy's repining. She's the belle of the ball, of the road she's the queen; and inside a moist sponge drips sweet chills on her bean. When you buy wife's bonnet for the Sabbath display, don't forget old Black Beauty, for it's darned hot today.

War Making Women See Kitchen is Home Need

The war has restored the kitchen to its pioneer importance as the center of the household. A woman is rich or poor, nowadays, according to her kitchen economics: a patriot or a slacker, according to her kitchen activities.

For a generation, woman has been endeavoring to escape from all kitchen connections. She has refused to think, except under compulsion, about cooking and baking and cleaning and dishwashing. Consequently, whenever the job was thrust upon her, she has gone about it in the longest and most tiresome way.

"I love to make salads, but I simply hate dishwashing," says many a housewife with a little air which she mistakes for proper pride.

Now comes war's necessities, to elevate all kitchen work, including conscientious dishwashing, to the dignity of patriotic duty, to make the woman who shirks as great a menace to her country as the soldier who neglects to take care of his arms.

But man accepts discipline much more readily than woman. He may not like it any better, but he sees the sense of doing the reasonable thing. And he shortens disagreeable drudgery by putting his mind on it and pushing it through.

But woman, while she washes dishes plans a shopping tour or reviews last night's movies, meanwhile making many an extra step between the cupboard and the sink, or forgetting her recipe and spoiling her cake, or slopping over the dishwater and then wiping up the floor.

The woman who flatters herself that she can carry on a kitchen without thinking literally makes herself work.

And the girl who scorns dishwashing is hardly qualified to appreciate the courage of the boy who is going away to be a soldier. A mighty good way to express her patriotism is to undertake to carry on the ordinary duties of daily life with the same courage and persistence which she admires in military men.

Clear Thinking is as Necessary as Economy

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

TWO CONTESTS ARE HELD AT ZANESVILLE

One Medal Goes to Velma Smuts and the Other to Grace Smuts.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Zanesville, Ind., July 31.—The two contests given at Zanesville on July 27 were a success in every respect. The Loyal Temperance Legion medal was awarded to Velma Smuts and the gold medal to Miss Grace Smuts.

The interest in the W. C. T. U. contest was manifest in the large attendance, the church being too small to accommodate the audience.

The offering taken amounted to $6.18. The music by the quartette was exceptionally good and very much appreciated by all. The chorus by the children was very good and the singing by the L. T. L. contestants showed their ability in music as well as declaration. It is hoped that the medal contest work will be continued the coming year, especially among the children, as the children of our town are very enthusiastic about the work. The judges for the two contests were Gearry Knight, chairman; Misses Enid Eichon and Gertie Keplinger.

FORT WAYNE GIRLS MAY GO TO THE WAR ZONES

Will Serve as Chums for the American Soldiers in France.

Plans are said to be under way to interest Fort Wayne girls in accompanying the American troops to France. Pamphlets have been received explaining the scheme originated by Joseph Lee, national commissioner of military camps. Speakers will probably be here in the fall.

An army of American girls is to be sent to Europe to "keep company" with the army of American boys. American womanhood is going to see to it that Sammy doesn't suffer for companionship. The plan has been approved by the war department because, it is believed, it will keep the boys cheerful and careful of personal appearance and morals.

The girls will not be sent "alone." The plan calls for safeguarding them in every particular, with proper chaperones from the home community. A division of girls from one district will act as "sisters" to the soldiers only from the same district.

The movement will be akin to the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and officers of these associations are its directors. The standard of morals will be the "Y" standard, which is that of the refined home.

It is proposed to send the girls to France on army transports, and to house them in buildings or tents toward the front, but out of shell range. A large station is to be maintained in Paris. Here they will be permitted to have music, games and social recreation in company of the girls, chaperoned. Spooning will be prohibited. The girls will volunteer for work, and must be between 21 and 30. They must be educated, amusing and cheerful. The only uniform the girls will wear is up-to-date clothes. The girls will be sent to a training school in New York and taught how to amuse soldiers.

Violets are natives to nearly all lands and thrive very generally everywhere, the greater number in the shade, but some in the sun.

EVAS BLANK CHIEFS IN ONE-SIDED GAME

Higbee Is Hammered, While Turner Allows But Four Hits.

Evansville, Ind., July 31.—Hammering Higbee for thirteen hits, five of which were for extra bases, the Evas beat the Chiefs in the first game of the series here yesterday, 7 to 0. Tuck Turner was on the mound for the home team, and the Fort Waynes got only four hits off him, two of them being scratches.

Only one runner of the Chiefs got as far as third base, Breaux knocking a three-base hit in the seventh after two were out. Evansville started their scoring early, getting two in the second and a like number in the third, and three more in the sixth. Three-base hits by Kibble and Daubert and Williams' error scored the runs in the second. Hauger's single, a fly lost in the sun, and Altermatt's hit through third added two more in the third. Then the Evas were kept in check for two innings, until they broke loose in the sixth with three more runs. Two three-baggers and two singles accounted for the Evansville runs in this inning.

Turner held the Chiefs well in hand all the way, not once being in very serious difficulty. Brilliant fielding plays livened up the game at times, Glockson and Hauger making one-handed catches in the outfield, and Hoffman making a barehanded stop of Altermatt's grounder and throwing him out at first.

PUGILISTIC RANKS INVADED BY HEBREWS WHO NOW HOLD FOUR OF SEVEN WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS

(By Paul Purman).

A glance over the list of our boxing champions reveals the rather unusual fact that of seven divisions in America four of the champions are Hebrews.

A list of their real names probably would not be recognized even by the most ardent boxing fan, Benjamin Leiner, Gershon Mendloff, Al Rudolph and Batting Levinsky. Leiner, of course, is Leonard, Mendloff is better known as Ted Lewis and Rudolph fights as Al McCoy.

They hold the lightweight, welterweight, middleweight and light heavyweight crowns between them.

All of which reminds us that some of our greatest fighters have been Jewish.

Joe Chonisky, whom there was never a gamer or greater fighter at his weight, is a Hebrew.

Abe Attell, in his prime the most wonderful of feathers, is Jewish.

The list includes Leach Cross, Charley White, Kid Herman, the featherweight, Harry Lewis and many others.

With the exception of the Irish, no race has produced so many good fighters than the Hebrew.

The present day champions, with the exception of McCoy, are up to the average of the old days.

Leonard certainly is greater than the two champions who came before him, and unlike either Welsh and Richie, is willing to risk his crown now and then.

Lewis a great fighter, shifty, clever and hard hitting.

Levinsky made a name for himself as an iron man when he fought two or three times a week against the best men in his class. He won his title from Jack Dillon, in itself no easy task.

Al McCoy, generally recognized as middleweight champion on account of his one round victory over George Chip two or three years ago, manages to hang on to the title because no middleweight has been found able to knock him out in ten rounds, and Al won't play unless it's a ten-round no-decision fight.

CAN REDS WIN? MAYBE—IT WILL TAKE SUPER-BASEBALL AND BREAKS OF GAME

(By Paul Purman).

What are the chances of the Reds?

This is the problem confronting the baseball world as the clubs are rounding the turn for the final drive on the stretch, with the Giants some eight games out in front.

Let us look into the chances of Matty's outfit to play for the big money this October.

Eight games at this point is a considerable margin, especially when the clubs referred to are playing about the same kind of baseball.

It means that the club eight games behind must not only win every time the other club wins, but that it must play enough better ball to win eight games while the other club is losing eight.

The Giants have been playing .667 ball this season. So far there has been nothing to indicate they will drop. If the Giants continue playing .667 ball the Reds face the hopeless task of playing .850 ball to catch them.

But there are two or three conditions which favor the Reds in the final drive.

They have about 60 games to play, while the Giants must play about 75, including a number of double-headers.

The Reds have some 35 games on the home grounds while the Giants have only 25, not counting double bills.

On their last trip the Reds played .700 baseball, while the Giants were playing .667 baseball baseball at the Polo grounds.

If the Reds can play better baseball at home than on the road and the Giants hit a slump on the road the eight game lead may be lessened considerably. That of course is a question only the games can decide.

Then in the matter of double-headers. Can the Giant pitchers stand a strain of a long strain of double bills?

The New York pitching staff is a notoriously weak spot on the club. Schupp is scarcely more than a one day a week pitcher. Whether he can keep up his high winning percentage if called upon to work often is a question.

Anderson perhaps can work oftener than any other pitcher on the Giant's staff, with the possible exception of Jeff Tesreau. Perritt, Sallee and Benton can scarcely be called iron men.

The strain of these double-headers may work against McGraw getting all he should from his pitchers.

New York has the hardest schedule of the two for the next few weeks. McGraw must meet the Reds, the Cardinals and the Cubs, all dangerous clubs, in addition to the Pirates. The Reds have to meet the Giants and Phillies of the strongest clubs, and Boston and Brooklyn.

Everything considered the Giants have decidedly the worst breaks coming, but an eight game lead is an eight game lead and it will take super-baseball to overcome it.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Red Sox Win First.

Boston, July 31.—In the first game of a crucial series between Boston and Chicago, the Red Sox won from the White Sox 3 to 1. The victory puts Boston one game from the leaders. Williams was hit hard in the first inning and was replaced by Danforth. Chicago made only one hit off Ruth after the second inning. The score: R.H.E.
Chicago ..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 4 2
Boston ..... 2 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 7 2
Batteries — Williams, Danforth and Schalk; Ruth and Agnew.

Tigers Swamp Senators.

Washington, July 31.—Detroit swamped Washington here yesterday 16 to 4. Detroit made twenty-one hits, Cobb, Veach and Vitt each getting five. Cobb scored five runs. Score: R.H.E.

Washington .. 0 1 0 1 2 0 0 0 0— 4 12 5

Yankees Beat Browns.

New York, July 31.—New York won the opening game of the series from St. Louis here yesterday, score 3 to 2. All three runs were scored in the third on Bauman's single, a base on balls, Pipp's triple and Baker's double. Score: R.H.E.
St. Louis ..... 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 7 1

RICHARDS MAY GET JOB.

Madison, Wis., July 31.—There is a strong probability that John R. Richards, former coach, who was a star fullback on the University of Wisconsin team a few years ago, will succeed Dr. Paul Withington as head football coach next fall. Dr. Withington has joined the medical reserve corps.

The gridiron situation in Madison is in doubt. Several of the stars of last year's eleven have enlisted and practically an entire new team will have to be developed.

Cleveland, O., July 31.—Josh Devore, a member of the New York National league club in its championship days, is reported to have entered the milk business in Chillicothe, O., his home town. Devore was with the Boston Nationals when they won the world's championship in 1914.

TWO CHIEFS BATTING IN SELECT .300 CLASS

Walker Has Good Lead for Central League Batting Honors.

Official batting averages of the Central league just issued show that two Fort Wayne players, Smith and Hoffman, are included in the select circles of .300 hitters. Smith is hitting .335 and Hoffman .309. Both of these players have been hitting well since the figures were compiled and it is probable that they have boosted their marks.

Walker, the hard hitting outfielder of the Springfield club, is still leading the league with a mark of .376. Kirby, of Muskegon, is next with .363.

The averages of the other Fort Wayne players are as follows:

Roberts, .294; Gleich, now with Richmond, .271; Glockson, .263; Williams, .252; Siegfried, .232; Vandagrift, .229; Breaux, .190; Cummins, .170; Higbee, .164.

HENNESSEY IS NEW INDIANAPOLIS CHAMP

Seventeen-Year-Old Lad Expected to Star in the State Tourney.

Indianapolis, July 31.—Johnny Hennessey, not yet 17 years of age, is the new tennis champion of Indianapolis. The youngster defeated the veteran Charles Wente in the finals of the patriotic meet to decide the championship of the city. The final match resulted 8—6, 6—4, 6—4 and 6—8.

Hennessey played wonderful tennis all the way through the match, and surprised the large gallery of spectators. Wente took the first set but after that the youngster solved his style of attack and won rather easily. During the course of the tournament Hennessey eliminated the vetreans, Fred Appel and Charley Trask.

Hennessey entered his first city tournament three years ago, when he was 13 years old. He is expected to star in the state tournament which will be held in this city next month. He is one of the most popular champions that Indianapolis has ever had.

Mrs. C. Willis Adams won the championship in the ladies' singles, winning from Mrs. I. Watt Pugh 3—6, 8—6 and 6—3. Mrs. Adams also held the championship last year.

TRAPSHOOTERS; SMALLEST AND LARGEST

MRS. ADA SCHILLING GEORGE J. TUCKETT

By Peter P. Carney
Editor National Sports Syndicate.

The smallest trapshooter is Mrs. Ada Schilling, of Portland, Ore.

The biggest trapshooter is George J. Tuckett, of Los Angeles, Cal.

Until the past season Tuckett was a resident of Yonkers, N. Y., and Mrs. Schilling called San Jose, Cal., her home.

When this pair—Tuckett, 6 feet 6, and weighing considerably beyond the 300 mark, and Mrs. Schilling, 5 feet 1, and barely moving the scales at 95 pounds—appeared at the same trapshooting tournament it was only natural that the wideawake photographers should bring them together. And with this co-operation we are able to present them to you.

The photograph was taken at the recent Pacific Coast Handicap tournament in San Jose. Tuckett broke 99 targets in the preliminary handicap and 92 more in the Pacific Coast handicap, therefore he smiles. Mrs. Tuckett only broke 83 targets in the Pacific Coast handicap, but she smiles whether she breaks them or not. On one day of the tournament Mrs. Schilling managed to break 93 out of 100 targets.

Tuckett averages about 90 per cent. and is one of the most genial and popular trapshots in the country.

Mrs. Schilling for several years has been recognized as the best amateur woman trapshot on the coast. She shoots at thousands of targets yearly, and invariably averages close to the 90 per cent. mark. She is a recognized authority on the sport.

TENTH ANNUAL MEET OPENS AT KALAMAZOO

Excessive Heat Expected to Have Bad Effect on the Horses.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 31—Kalamazoo's tenth annual Grand circuit race meeting opened this afternoon at Recreation park, where there are three events on the initial mard. The $2,000 Rickmanhotel purse for 2:05 pacers, with a field of the promised is the chief event of the day. There were seven or eight starters in the 2:11 pace and also in the 2:17 trot. At Imaging here will be three to five heats to a finish.

Every stall at the park is occupied and there is plenty of good material to insure a first-class race. The only drawback at this time is the excessive heat, which began Sunday morning and may have a bad effect on horses and trainers unless a cooler spell comes.

COLLEGE ATHLETES JOIN ARMY.

THREE MILLION ACRES OF WHEAT IN INDIANA

That Is What State Council of Defense Is Planned for This Fall.

Indianapolis, July 31.—The State Council of Defense, through its publicity committee, George Ade chairman, today issued the following:

That Indiana plans to sow 3,000,000 acres of wheat this fall and that through organized personal visits more than one million bushels of approved seed wheat have been located, was a part of the reply telegraphed to Washington today by Prof. G. I. Christie, of the state committee on food production and distribution. The information was in answer to a telegram received from Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston.

Mr. Houston's wire to Professor Christie asked the advice of Purdue as to the acreage of wheat that should be sown in Indiana this fall, "assuming that farmers will receive a fair price, and with due regard to fertilizer, implements, seed and labor situation, and the necessity of maintaining an aequate production of other crops."

The telegram of inquiry continues: "A careful study of the world's needs indicates a need of a maximum output compatible with a well balanced, safe farm practice and the advisability of Indiana sowing at least twenty-three per cent more acres of wheat this fall than last; this being the 1911 wheat acreage."

Mr. Houston further asked consideration of the desirability of calling a conference of the wheat producing states before a definite acreage program is developed. He adds that conferences are contemplated at a later period, to emphasize the importance of the department's recommendations for growing more wheat.

Bands being sold as rubber, for use in hermetically sealing cans and jars of food stuffs have been found fraudulent substitution, and responsible for the loss of thousands of quarts of fruits and vegetables in Indiana. The discovery was announced by Food Director Christie today. A committee headed by Mrs. Hence Orme, or Marion county, will secure samples from retailers and expose fraudulent brands. Dealers will be prosecuted unless they withdraw these substitutes from the market.

A committee will be selected by Charles Fox, of the State Federation of Labor, Harry Atkins, a large employer, Charles Greathouse, of the Federal Vocational board, and J. G. Collicott, of the State Board of Education, to direct an intensive vocational education intended to save the women, boys and inexperienced men from the terrors that impeded industrial progress and broke down physical standards in England at the beginning of the war. The committee will act in an advisory capacity with the state board. H. E. Miles, of Wisconsin, under the direction of Samuel Gompers, of the Council of National Defense, appeared before a conference of employers, labor men and the state council, requesting this action.

COURT RAISES BOND OF ALLEGED CROOK

Harry Henry Charged With Bringing Stolen Property Into State.

"Every time I come to the city jail I get in worse," said Harry Henry, alleged crook, who is now held on several criminal counts.

Henry was brought before Judge Kerr, Tuesday morning, so the judge could raise the man's bond from $500 to $1,500. Henry is charged with bringing stolen property into the state and with larceny. Detective Sergeant Walter Immel, who has been working on the case, states that he has located the owner of a hand bag which Henry had here and which was stolen from a passenger Pullman when the carrier contained $1,000 worth of valuables.

Watch Your Step.

Emmett Ridenour thought he put his foot on the brake, when he was driving his little car down St. Mary's avenue, Monday noon. Instead he had his basal extremity on the accelerator. The auto leaped forward. Motor Policeman Lentz clattered away in pursuit.

The officer testified that for two squares Ridenour breezed along at 32 miles an hour. Ridenour was fined $15 and costs.

Held Under Bond.

Frank Finney is held under $100 bond for trial on Wednesday on a charge of assault and battery. A score of indignant neighbors of the man claim that he beat his ten-year-old daughter, May, Monday afternoon, because she asked to go to a picture show.

Police, who were called to the home on Russell street, found a distressing scene, they report. The mother was away, in an effort to support the family. The powerful father makes little of the living, neighbors tell. Finney defends his actions in striking his daughter by proclaiming that a father has a legal right to punish his children.

Other Police Court Cases.

Harriet Woods, charged with abusing a small child, will be called before Judge Kerr, late Monday afternoon, for a sanity hearing. Neighbors of the woman will testify as to her mental bearing.

Rose Conner, colored, was married when she was thirteen years old. Her "man" is "somewhere in Mississippi." She faced a charge of associating with Thon Roe, colored, in city court, Tuesday. Police had taken the pair from a room at 1614 South Calhoun street, Monday night. The couple were fined $10 and costs each.

Cases of public intoxication were Frank Edgel, fined $5 and costs. W. J. McGowan, Ed Dales and Commodore Keck were released.

Herbert Holly, whose parents live at New Haven, claims he is but 18 years old and yet is registered for draft. He was in Detroit in June and not being able to prove his age was told that he should register. He has his blue card, but expects a signed affidavit from his father to save him from service. He was released from city court where he had been held on a train slumbing charge.

CUTTING STARTS AT RED CROSS WORKROOM

Headquarters Will Close at Noon Saturday During August.

The cutting out of garments which has formerly been done at the Foster shirtwaist factory has been transferred to the workroom of the Red Cross on East Berry street, and will be under the supervision of Mrs. Frank Taft. Two men, Dan and Frank King, have been donating their services for this work, and hereafter instead of cutting out the garments at their factory they will go the work at the Red Cross headquarters during the noon hour and in the evenings. The cutting report for the past three weeks shows an excellent average and is as follows:

Twenty dozen pajamas, 1,765 yards; 9 dozen shirts, 324 yards; 25 dozen slips, 612 yards; 20 dozen wraps, 440 yards; 12 dozen robes, 72 pairs of blankets; 15 dozen covers, 90 yards.

It has been decided that during the month of August the headquarters on East Berry street will be closed at noon on Saturday. Officials at headquarters are making a plea for more workers every day, and there is always room for volunteers. It is suggested that people bring tin foil to the headquarters, to be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Many children are still aiding materially in the work. Tuesday morning eight of them were busy at the tables, namely, Regina Minske, Lucille Simpson, Sidonia Jones, Dorothy Simpson, Dorothy Eberline, Richard Eberline, Margaret Leucke and Virginia Leucke.

BLUE-EYED FATHER TALKED TO HIMSELF

Would Correct Story Which Proclaimed Him Young Masher.

The police have been asked to correct the series of stories run in Fort Wayne newspapers in regard to the frustrated effort of a young man who accosted Mrs. Bert Wilson in front of a ten-cent store last Friday night. The apparent masher was chased by the police and a throng of citizens to a West Main street rooming house, where he escaped down a back stairway.

C. E. Emmet, who is now in West Baden, says he is the heralded masher. He declares that he is 55 years old and has two sons old enough to like the girls. More of his history includes that his wife has been dead for fifteen years.

Emmet talks to himself, he explains. He was chattering over a business deal when he passed Mrs. Wilson, he states. She wheeled upon him and attacked him with an umbrella, Emmet writes. Emmet fled to avoid publicity, he admits, and also avers that the story of the pursuit may be true.

He objects to newspapers saying that his eyes are brown when in fact they are a faded blue. Also he is not youthful any more and his arms are partly paralyzed. He does not make mashes on "strawberry blondes," as he proclaims Mrs. Wilson to be in his lengthy letter of explanation.

CHICAGO PROMISED RELIEF FROM HEAT

Chicago, Ill., July 31.—With tempering winds from the north promised for today it is expected that the heat wave which has swept this section since Saturday, will be broken. The official temperature for Chicago was given yesterday at 98 degrees, but street thermometers in many parts of the city registered well over 100 degrees. The day was the hottest of the year and prostrations were numerous. Twelve deaths were attributed to the heat, while scores of others were prostrated, many of them being taken to hospitals for treatment.

VALUABLE COW CHOKES.

A Jersey cow valued at $95, and owned by Mrs. Cora Machie, of 637 Prospect avenue, choked to death Friday night in a peculiar manner. The cow had been staked near the Lake Shore roundhouse but in some way became unfastened. She wandered over behind the St. Vincent's orphans' home where the rope became entangled around a tree and the cow fell down a hill. Some boys saw the cow strangling and ran to the home for a knife. When they returned the cow was dead.

What faces the American army today, as the great war swings into the beginning of its fourth year?

What is the strategic and tactical situation before the allies, and what part can Pershing's force play in the storming of the German citadel that has been breached at some points, but still remains untaken?

It is possible to put into simple words the military situation at this moment.

Let us imagine the central power group—Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey—as a great fortress, which is besieged on all sides.

The kaiser in the "castle keep" at Berlin—like a feudal lord of the middle ages—decided to grab his neighbors' land, and extend the walls of his fortress to dominate them.

Instead of walls of stone, this modern Teutonic "fortress" has walls of men. There are two main "keeps" or castles—at the ends of the fortress. At one end are Germany and Austria-Hungary; at the other is Asiatic Turkey.

Between these two great keeps is a connecting link of fortifications, taking in Bulgaria and Serbia, southern Rumania and European Turkey.

Projecting from this great fortress, and protecting its main walls, are "outworks," which serve to hold off the allied armies.

These "outworks" were built in the first year of the war. It was the "German year." For the last two years, allied "storming parties" have been at work reducing an outwork here, breaching a "bastion" or front there, and pushing ever closer to the main keeps.

The problem was to breach those walls. Tactics change; strategy remains immutable. The ancient Egyptians made their attack upon a walled city for exactly the same strategic object as Haig or Petain make their attacks. Hannibal, when he started his war against Rome by capturing Saguntum, proceeded as Pershing will have to proceed in France. The difference is one of tactics—not strategy. In the days of Egypt and Rome and Carthage the problem was to attack a walled city; now an army must attack a walled nation; walled in with human beings.

The problem before the ancient general was to make a breach in the walls and pour his archers and spearmen into the flanks of the defenders, sweep them along, and attack them in the rear. If a wall was breached, the defenders built a new wall behind the breach, and made sallies out to strike the attackers on the flank.

The allies' human battering rams have attacked the kaiser's fortress at seven points as shown on the accompanying sketch, with these results:

1. Russia has captured the Galician fronts of Bukovina and Lutsk, but the remainder of the large Poland-Volhynian outwork remains intact.

2. Russia has reduced the Caucasus front and joined hands with the British-Indian army.

3. The British-Indian army has captured the Mesopotamian front by reducing Bagdad.

4. The British-Indian army has reached the Syrian front.

5. The defenders of the Gallipoli front have driven away the storming party at this point.

6. Sarrail's army has breached the Salonika front, but the defenders cling to their second line.

7. The Italian army has breached the Carso front, but the temporary second line of walls holds.

8. The British - French - Belgian armies have driven the defenders completely out of the Vimy, Peronne, Laon and Maronvillers fronts, and broken down a long piece of the walls of the French-Belgian "outwork," and the second line of temporary walls (the Hindenburg line) is endangered.

The Romans brought up battering rams and catapults, and by pushing them close to the walls of the besieged city they battered away at one or two spots in the wall, until the stones were jarred loose and fell, thus making a "breach" in the wall, through which the foot troops could rush. In the meantime, the defenders of the walls did everything possible to injure the "battering ram" and to hinder the besiegers, but if the battering of the wall went on, they built a second wall inside, in the shape of a half moon.

This is exactly what the Teutons have done. When the outwork in France and Belgium was threatened, they built the "Hindenburg line," behind which they retired when the outer wall was breached.

The problem before the allies is to smash through a wall somewhere before the Germans have time to build an inside wall; or else to destroy the inside wall after the first has been breached, and thus pour into the fortress and take the defenders in rear and flank.

But when the ancient soldiers had built their half-moon temporary wall, it was possible for the soldiers on the old walls on either side to take in flank the besiegers when they rushed in to assault the second wall.

The task of the allied and American troops is to push home the destruction of the "bastions," or fronts, so that the main walls of the fortress can be attacked.

HOW THE CIRCUS COULD HELP IN WAR

Efficiency of Big Organizations in Moving and Feeding Great Amounts of Equipment and Large Numbers of Men Long Has Been Recognized by Army Heads.

BY LOUISE LE NOIR THOMAS.

CONSERVATION," "self-sacrifice," "service" are terms canted today to the rattle of the drum corps and to the bugler's clarion. Men are bringing forth new doctrines, they are creating new fetishes to gratify their sense of responsibility, they are inventing new uses for old traditions.

The aspect of war, however, has assumed a seriousness that warrants much of these ardent patriots' designs. Cooperation, being the most potent factor in any enterprise, be it belligerent or pacific, organizations for national defense are welcomed as a part of the machinery, whether they are the "Ladies' Sewing Society of Sawyerville," which is devoting its energy toward knitting mittens for the marines, or the governmental efforts of selling Liberty bonds at 3½ per cent monetary interest and 100 per cent patriotic interest.

The nation is in the act of taking an inventory of its assets and speculating as to its liabilities. It is summing up, eliminating, concentrating. The man of property is casting cogitative glances at his factory, mill or such industry as he may have created.

"Will the government take us over?"

That is a question that is weighing on the mind of every owner of servicable machinery.

In this inventory, nothing is omitted. The possibilities of utilization are legion, but in the first draft, it is only the most efficient of men, beasts and machinery that is being selected. Yet every one trembles—with patriotism or with fear—and the ground on which we all stand is quaking with the uncertainty of the hour.

Among the possibilities in the "taking over" process is an organization near to the hearts of more than 4,000,000 people of our country every year.

It is the circus!

"Why, what, in efficiency's name, could Uncle Sam do with a circus?" the uninitiated ask.

And the answer that will best demonstrate that such a probability is imminent, is the answer given by the circus men themselves—silence.

With the dissolution of his organization, the circus man forfeits his income, and must subsist on the capital that his equipment brings, for his business, unlike the perennial industries, must be recreated every spring with the recreation of verdant life. Sunshine and prosperity is the fertilizer that brings the gaily colored circus into bloom. One, therefore, cannot marvel that the owner is not disposed to publish abroad his mature resources.

Released Horses to Army.

It would be unfair to say that the owner of one of these "three-ringers" is less a patriot than the factory owner or the man who enlists his dollars in government bonds. Such a statement would be not only ungenerous, but untrue, for at the outbreak of the war Miller Bros.' "101 Wild West Shows" was playing in England, and when the call for horses came Miller turned over to the government his 500 head of fine equines which had been trained to do just such service as was needed in time of war. The beast, accustomed to the noise of sham battle, bore up admirably under genuine fire, and, having been trained for celerity and formation en masse, they proved to be finer specimens than those which were bought outright from the horse markets.

Unhappily, there are but few of these Wild West steeds to be enlisted in the cavalry service, but it goes without saying that even the circus horse, whose high-strung nervous system has become inured to the excitement of the ring and whose physical system has become acclimated to atmospheric change and continual shipment, would be better suited to go on the battlefield than the ranch or driving horse. There are at least ten Wild West and circus shows in America that average 500 head of horses apiece and innumerable smaller shows which carry from 25 to 100 head.

America is the mother country of the circus, and ever since the first tented organization that was set up in what is now New York City, somewhere between the years 1820 and 1830, she has held preeminence in that line of amusement.

HE'S A HUSKY WORKER

Fifteen years ago Barnum Bailey's circus went over from this country to the Old World that it might show other nations of the globe what America had accomplished in that field of industry and organization, as well as amusement. Europe stood aghast at the magnitude and efficiency of the business, and the invasion of our circus into foreign countries left an impression that still lives. Signal tributes were paid to James A. Bailey, managing director, by many of the crowned heads, and the record of the circus was one that has been unequaled, having played the whole five-year period without a single failure.

The most impressive feature of Barnum & Bailey's European campaign was in Germany. Especially significant at this time of warfare, when the German system of military organization is conceded as being one of the finest.

The circus was the first under-canvas amusement that was ever allowed to spread itself in Berlin, the German army's headquarters. So impressed were the military officers with the management of the organization that they attended the show daily, taking many notes and gaining much information as to how the business was carried on. When the circus departed the government sent two officers, by permission of Mr. Bailey, to travel with the vagrant amusement, learning every detail of transportation, packing, feeding and supplying, and afterwards patterning many details of management of the army along new lines.

Eleven Large Circuses.

Our own government accorded the same tribute at an earlier date when Gen. Nelson A. Miles sent representatives of the War Department to travel a fortnight with one of the big tent shows and gained many valuable lessons in transportation, the handling of men and horses, and in the commissary department, which is fully equipped to cook and serve 3000 meals a day under one of the great canvas homes of the men.

As an institution in itself, the operation and management of a large circus is as perfect as ever the human mind conceived. Beside that perfection of management, the enormity of the equipment is a thing not to be scorned by the government, and as part of the war machinery, an asset to be considered seriously.

The eleven largest circuses in the United States today are: Al G. Barnes, Barnum & Bailey, Cole Bros., Gentry Bros., Hagenbeck-Wallace, Patterson-Gollmar, Ringling Bros., Sells-Floto, Jess Willard and Buffalo Bill Wild West, Yankee Robinson and John Robinson's Shows.

These shows own and control from twenty to eight-five railway cars each, which include stock cars, flat cars and sleepers. The dissolution of these eleven amusements alone would lessen the car shortage by 500, and should all of the show cars be taken over by the government, there would be 2500 available to the uses of food, troop and beast transportation, while the flat cars are capable of hauling the cannon and heavy artillery for use as desired.

Of these cars, Ringling Bros. own four advertising cars with equipment for 125 bill posters, sixteen Pullmans, two private cars, sixty-three flat cars (with cars especially designed for the comfort and safety of the elephants and camels), fourteen coaches and several car shops that are fitted out with equipment for repairing and renovating the circus machinery from time to time. These aggregate an investment of $487,400.

The same show owns $360,000 worth of horses, including many breeds; 400 baggage horses, fifty ponies, sixty ring horses, forty racing horses, thirty Arabian stallions, twenty-eight trained horses and sixty-two horses used in the parade or 670 in all.

A three-ring circus covers twelve acres of ground when its canvases are all spread. There are about twenty tents in all, which include primarily the "big top" or main tent 580 feet long and 85 feet wide and seating 15,000 persons, the "cook top," which is first on the grounds, to prepare the meals for the hundreds of employes to follow, the menagerie tent, the side shows, the stable, dressing rooms, blacksmith, barber, harness, wardrobe, and other lesser tents.

It would not be difficult to imagine a regiment of men resting in the "big top" at a distance far from the firing line, or to see one of the other friendly canvases stretched over the heads of the wounded. Hospital tents are needed, and the circus homes may see, before long, a vastly different pageant from the flamboyant spectacle that now delights the throngs in the opening "tournament." The music may be a dirge, and the procession may be the anxious tread of stretcher bearers and whiteclad nurses, and in the place of the "reserved" and "the blues" perhaps one will see rows of cots and the "joys" and "kinkers" may have to give way to less amusing actors.

The wagon equipment of a circus is not without an important use. Many staunch property wagons, chariots, floats, animal cages, tool wagons and so on are capable of bearing great weights, for they are, perforce, built to encounter the roughest of roads and to withstand the destruction of rain and weather. An investment of from $300,000 to $400,000 is put into the "rolling stock" of every show.

Besides these obvious assets that could be utilized by the governmental machinery, there is another feature that presents itself in the menagerie.

Elephant Strongest Animal.

The Occident has become so mechanically inclined that it has lost sight of the natural forces that exist, and that served man ages before the introduction of harnessed power, electricity, steam, and gasoline. The "harnessed power" of the ancients were the elephant, the camel, the horse and the other beasts of burden.

Nor have these beasts become enervated or weakened because of many generations of ease, but possess the vitality that distinguished their forebears.

The elephant is the strongest of animals and the most satisfactory worker in field, mill and lumber camp. They are capable of doing work that would be a strain on six of their equestrian cousins, and do it with a willingness and accuracy that is gratifying to the master. Gangs of elephant workers are used in Asia to do transporting, loading and stacking in timber yards, and, once having been taught his duty, the elephant never shirks or forgets. Years after the beast has left off doing tricks in a circus, he will remember and repeat them if given the familiar command or necessary apparatus with which to accomplish the feat.

England has availed herself of the sagacity and strength of the elephant, and since all of her mechanical devices are directed toward the business of warfare, is adopting the primitive methods of farming with natural forces. This is, of course, a very restricted means, as the elephant is not a common animal in the Occident, but the British circus owners, the Sanger Brothers, have offered the services of all available equipment, which includes their herd of elephants.

The huge beasts accomplish farm work with ease and apparent enjoyment, and drag the heaviest plows without apparent effort. In respect to strength and activity, they far excel the mule or horse, and are scarcely put to shame by the steam plow that lumbers along the furrows with less facility than the living machine.

America is far more wealthy in this valuable animal than the British Isles. One of our circuses alone has a herd of elephants numbering forty head, and the other large shows have no less than ten head each, and many twice and three times the number. With the aid of these beasts, farming could be conspicuously facilitated, and yet permit the horses to be sent "to the front."

Another Occidental beast that has served his dusky master since history has recorded the events of time is the camel, the hardiest creature that lives.

One of the recent and convincing examples of his resistance to destroying forces was manifested in the flood at Dayton, Ohio, in 1913.

Hagenbeck-Wallace was playing in Peru, Ind., at the time of the calamity, and the whole circus was caught in the overflow. Practically all of the menagerie was drowned, but the camels, having the advantage of long necks, were capable of holding their heads above the water, and survived, although they stood head-deep in the water for forty-eight hours. They seemed none the worse for their prolonged bath.

That these "ships of the desert" may have gained wisdom in their communications with the Sphynx and the wise men who mused on ponderous themes while steering their "desert crafts," no one can say, but that the camel has been a successful laborer in many fields of activity is undisputed. His activities need not cease now because of the introduction of electricity and steam, and since energy needs be conserved quite as much as food, that hardy beast should be set the task of working the fields of grain and bearing the burdens of the nation on its able, one or two humped back, as the case may be equally as much as the horse or mule.

Importance of System.

Camels are not as numerous in circuses as elephants, thirty being the greatest number any of the big shows carry, but they can be made of greater use than to parade the streets in gorgeous trappings or stand indolently in a roped inclosure to be made a spectacle for curious throngs. The beast is capable of hard and intelligent labor, and can do a big bit toward helping on farm or field or in actual warfare.

Having enumerated the material equipment of the circus that can easily be made an important function in the machinery of Uncle Sam, one must take into graver consideration the intelligences that controls and manipulates these great commercial organizations—organizations of such high efficiency as to be emulated by military experts. These intellects may soon be working out schemes for governmental efficiency—adapting the circus game to the grim game of warfare.

Each departmental head of a circus is an expert in his line, and each has some-thing within him with which he can serve his country. The absurd clown, the grotesque contortionist, the "ferocious wild man," the "fire eater" and the snake charmer are doubtless quite as fit subjects for the army or navy as the university athlete.

The most stupendous problem of the circus and the branch of activity that is the greatest drain on the properties and income is the moving and transportation. The whole plant must be set up and torn down sometimes as often as every day, and therefore the wear and tear is enormous. Circus moving has been reduced to a science, however, and it is this science which the army has studied and adapted with such success.

When one takes into consideration the fact that a circus travels 25,000 miles each working season (which is less than seven months), and makes on the average of 190 runs; that the cost of this transportation alone is $100,000, and that the train is more than a mile in length—eighty-five cars, divided into five sections, one can understand the necessity for making the system of transportation perfect.

In the first place, the circus employs an army of teamsters, canvasmen and various other laborers in its crew. Each has his duty that he repeats every day, never varying from the task assigned him. Every time a circus is loaded and unloaded each stick and rope is in exactly the same place as was given it at the outset of the season, and never is the smallest article left on the grounds when the caravan moves away from the "lot" after the day's work is done.

The horse department employs skilled veterinaries and many expert stable men, who are so familiar with horseflesh that no tricks or stratagem can for an instant deceive their practiced eye and touch in handling or judging an animal. These men also understand the care and doctoring of the horse and would be of valuable service in a cavalry regiment.

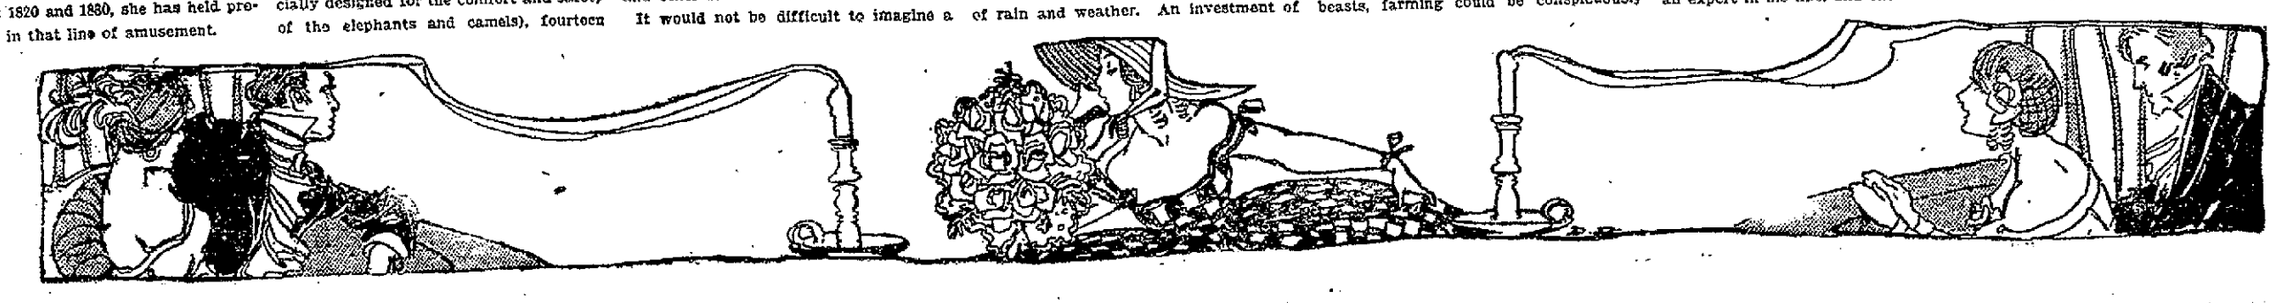
In transporting horses, the loading into stock cars is of great importance to the circus man, for death or injury often results in the improper disposal of the beats. Twenty-two horses are allotted to each car. This number crowds the beasts. Twenty-two horses are allotted standing during the trip, nor can they in any way shift their positions. A "wedge horse," an animal specially trained to squeeze himself into the already scant quarters, pushes and shoves his way into the middle of the pack at the last, so that no room is left in the car for another inch of flesh. The horse department is one of the most scientific in the organization.

The circus is a complete community in itself. It has its physician, its barber, its lawyer, its blacksmith, its merchant man, its foundry, its tailor and repair shop, which are on the weekly pay roll and travel in constant attendance.

The department that caused Europe the greatest wonder is the commissariat. It is next in importance to the transportation department. In the early days of the circus the employes were sent to the local hotels for their meals, but as the organizations grew in size it was found that hotel and restaurant accommodations were inadequate and the management of one of the shows at last determined to waive his timidity in trying out so mammoth an understaking. The feeding of the men and beasts through the commissariat has since become one of the most systematic and altogether satisfactory departments and one after which the army commissariat is patterned.

The "cook tent" is the first to be set up on the circus grounds, and to this portable kitchen is delivered all the provisions that have been bought by the advance contractor. Fresh supplies are made daily, and nothing but staples and the cooking apparatus are carried with the swiftly moving institution.

No scrap of food is wasted. Parings, bones, scrapings and unused products are fed to the animals that most will relish them, and when the cook tent is taken down and rolled up, after having served the 3000 meals of one day, no vestige of waste remains on the circus lot to tell the story of the gala day.



FRAYED NERVES FOLLOW THREATS

Three Sleepless Nights Are the Lot of a Timid Barber.

Oliver C. Stewart, barber, has not slept since last Saturday. He has feared that George Klinge, 301 Berry street, meant what he said when he told Stewart, "I will knock your block off." Also Stewart's nerves are frayed, his wife testified, in the city court Tuesday morning, because Klinge mentioned that he intended to cut Stewart's heart out.

Klinge faced surety of the peace proceedings in the city court Tuesday. He pleaded not guilty to the charge that he had threatened to disarrange Stewart's anatomy.

Testimony of Stewart, who wore his immaculate barber garb, and of Klinge, who has not shaven for a few hours, were aided by the wives of the two men, who were also in court and who wanted to talk constantly.

"Oh my," gasped Mrs. Klinge in disgust when Stewart told that Klinge carried a revolver.

"Whew," emited Mrs. Stewart when Klinge said he talked to Stewart in orderly fashion.

Trouble had started over the rights of Stewart to make use of the toilet on the property also rented by the Klinges and abutting on the barber shop site. Judge Kerr decided to give both Klinge and Stewart a chance to quiet down by continuing the case until further notice.

I. W. W. HAS MUCH MONEY

Anvil mine near here, it is believed will have a salutary effect. That the I. W. W. organization is well supplied with money and that it is being liberally supplied from outside sources is the statement made by several persons who claim to have authoritative information. This statement will be thoroughly investigated.

Palace hall at Ironwood, where the I. W. W. attempted to hold a meeting last night is a wreck and eight foreigners are in jail, one with a broken head as the result of Chief of Police Hult's forced entry into the hall.

The strikers of the Colby-Ironton and Yale mines called yesterday, early today were only partly successful, according to mine officials, only 200 or 300 men going out.

TRY TO BLUFF WASHINGTON.

Lansing, Mich., July 31.—"It should be pointed out to the miners that this is not a movement to improve their condition but wholly intended to coerce the United States government by interfering with the preparations for defense." This statement in part was contained in a telegram received at Governor Sleeper's office this morning from Secretary of Labor Wilson at Washington. "May I not urge you to use your influence to induce the mine operators to so arrange the wage and condition of employment that there will be no basis for agitation?" the telegram added.

Accompanying the telegram was a copy of one received at Washington from W. D. Haywood, general secretary-treasurer of the I. W. W., which read: "Miners of Michigan and Minnesota threaten to strike unless miners at Columbus, N. M., are returned to their homes at Bisbee, Ariz."

Governor Sleeper is expected to return here from the upper peninsula tomorrow.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

tained a fractured skull and died while he was being hurried to the Lutheran hospital in this city.

Roberts is a patient at the Lutheran hospital suffering with a broken right wrist and painful bruises and cuts to his left leg and thigh. He is employed as a brakeman on the Michigan Central.

The car with which the Michigan auto collided was slightly damaged, but the occupants, Claude Cheney and his brother, O. H. Cheney, escaped without a scratch. They began rescue work at once and while Claude hurried to the nearest telephone to summon medical aid, his brother kept up the work of resuscitation.

Carried Intoxicants.

According to the testimony of the Cheney brothers many beer and whisky bottles were found scattered about the scene of the wreck. It was stated by men who arrived from Bluffton that a woman got out of the car at Bluffton, refusing to ride with them any farther. This unconfirmed report, however, bore more weight when it was stated that one of the men, when partially revived, kept calling for his sister.

The Brothers' Versions.

The Cheney brothers state that they were traveling along the road going south at the rate of perhaps twenty-five miles an hour. The driver said he called the attention of his brother to the zig-zag movement of an automobile which was coming toward them at a terrific speed.

They state that they slacked the movement of their own car and turned out of the road into the grass. The approaching automobile kept swerving from side to side and it is the brothers' opinion that just as it reached the side of their car that a rut in the road was hit, throwing the car sideways. They say that the Michigan car struck the rear hub of their own car, throwing the car to the side of the road where it turned completely over.

The Fort Wayne men say that two of the men were thrown from the car and they were found huddled at the side of the road. Butler, the driver, was pinned beneath the car.

Roberts Talks.

At the hospital Roberts told an interviewer that they were only traveling about twenty-two miles an hour when he heard the crash of the radiators and the fenders. The next thing he knew was when they had put him into an automobile and hurried him to Fort Wayne.

He stated that they had stopped at Bluffton and each had had a glass of beer and a cheese sandwich and that the other intoxicants were being carried along to give to men who furnished them information as to the roads to take.

The Michigan party left Anderson at 9:35 o'clock Monday morning where they had visited with Robert's brother, H. J. Roberts, of 224 West Fourth street.

Butler is survived by a widow, Robert's sister, his parents, two brothers and three sisters, all of Jackson. Cook was a single man and, according to Roberts, just missed being called on the first draft by a few numbers.

No Word Received.

Cook's body was removed to the Pelter undertaking establishment in this city where it is being held pending the arrival of word from Jackson. The body of Butler was taken to the undertaking parlors in Ossian.

Word from the Lutheran hospital Tuesday morning was that Roberts would recover from his injuries.

RUTHLESSNESS IS THE POLICY

taken positions across the whole front of retreat.

Deserters are shot and attempts to spread panic are suppressed by prompt executions.

Deserters, spies and agitators who enjoyed complete immunity under the committee system lie dead on the highways. A paper pinned on the corpses read, "Here lies a traitor to his country." Red badges and other symbols which accompanies the demoralization have almost disappeared.

A dispatch to the Post from Petrograd, referring to the Russian retreat in Galicia says it is conservatively estimated that more than two million Russian troops are steadily marching rearward. These constitute the Eleventh and Seventh armies with their reserves. The Eighth army, which is largely cavalry, and not included in the foregoing figures, also is retreating and its position, says the correspondent, is extremely critical. The Germans are straining every effort to capture while following up the Tenth and Seventh army and it looks as if the Eighth army might be caught in a bag.

their left attacked the German positions along a wide front north of the River Lys at 3:50 o'clock this morning.

The allied troops, according to a British official statement, have captured their first objectives on the whole front and are reported to be making satisfactory progress at all points.

A considerable number of prisoners already have been captured by the French and British.

The text of the British statement announcing that an offensive had been launched by the British and French against the German positions north of the river Lys, in Flanders, says:

"In conjunction with the French troops on our left, we attacked at 3:50 o'clock this morning on a wide front north of the river Lys.

"The allied troops have captured their first objective on the whole front attacked and are reported to be making satisfactory progress at all points.

"Considerable numbers of prisoners already have been captured."

The offensive launched this morning by General Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander, in conjunction with General Petain, the commander of the French forces, against the German lines on the Belgian front is the culmination of the tremendous heavy gun bombardment which has been in progress almost continuously in this area for a week.

The intensity of the artillery drum fire with which the entente allies had been demolishing the Teuton trenches preparatory to today's assault has been described by the German general staff as the greatest in the history of warfare, even surpassing the terrific fire maintained at the beginning of the Somme and Arras offensives.

Military observers have attributed two objectives for the entente offensive —the capture of the Belgian north sea coast which has been used by the Germans as bases for their submarines and to assist the hard pressed Russians on the Galician front.

The battle front north of the River Lys stretches from Warneton, on the Franco-Belgian border, to the north sea coast, the distance between those two points being about thirty miles. Included in this battle area is the famous Wytchatel-Messines front, where the British on June 7, after exploding a million pounds of high explosives under the German lines, attacked on a mile front and captured the high ridge, several towns, 47 heavy guns and more than 7,000 prisoners.

FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

Paris, July 31.—French forces last night made a successful attack against the German positions along a 1,500-yard front at La Royere and west of Epine de Chevregny, on the Aisne front, says the French official statement issued this afternoon. A German counter attack was crushed.

The French took 167 prisoners, including two officers and fifteen non-commissioned officers belonging to three regiments.

The artillery and infantry, the statement adds, were active in the Cerny-Hurtebise sector.

WARDED PRISONERS BADLY.

Petrograd, July 31.—The notable growth in the number of enemy war prisoners escaping from Russia since the revolution is engaging the attention of the military authorities. According to published data from the beginning of the war until March a total of 5,350 escapes have been registered, whereas during March 735 managed to get away, in April 2,158, and in May more than 3,000 escaped.

TAKE MANY RUSSIAN GUNS.

Copenhagen, July 31.—The Berlin Tageblatt's correspondent at Austrian army headquarters give the number of cannon captured by the Germans in the Russian retreat as 70, those taken by the Austrians numbering nearly 200. General Korniloff, according to the correspondent, apparently is attempting to organize a new resistance along the rocky Galician frontier.

BRITISH CASUALTIES.

London, July 31.—British casualties in all theaters of military operations published in the newspapers during the month of July total 71,832 officers and men. The officers killed, wounded or missing total 2,503, while the men number 69,329.

GERMANY'S NEXT WAR LOAN.

Copenhagen, July 31.—According to the Berlin Vossiche Zeitung subscriptions for the seventh war loan will be received at the end of September. Special arrangements are being made to drum up rural subscriptions. Furloughs are being facilitated for influential farmers serving in the army in order that they may co-operate. A campaign of publicity has already begun in the newspapers.

BELGIAN DEPORTATIONS.

Havre, July 31.—Deportations of civilians from Mons, Belgium, continue, the German government sending away 129 men on June 26 and 39 June 28. It is probable they will be made to work on the German front in France.

RUMANIAN SUCCESSES.

London, July 31.—"In the mountainous region between the Casin valley and the Putna the enemy tried to attack us at different points but the attacks were everywhere repulsed," says the official Rumanian war statement under date of July 28.

"Fighting is in progress for the possession of the Magura Casilunin height," the statement adds.

STILL DRIVING THE SLAVS.

Berlin, July 31.—Russian forces which made a stand in western Bukowina, says the official statement issued today by the German general staff, were forced yesterday to evacuate their Cheremosh line and to retire eastward.

The German announcement says that in the direction of Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, the Austro-German forces have captured Werenczanka and Sniatyn.

In the wooded Carpathian area the Teutons forced the Russians to abandon their positions in the Meste-Canaste sector.

The Russian frontier river Zbrocz has been crossed by the Austro-German troops at many points along a thirty-mile front in spite of bitter Russian resistance, the German reports say.

Turkish troops captured Russian positions near Niwra on the river.

In the area of the Brzezkr mountains one of the German regiments was pressed back to the south of Casinubui.

BERLIN REPORTS SMASH.

Berlin, July 31.—Strong attacks by the entente allies have commenced along a wide front from the Yser to the Lys in Flanders, says the official statement issued today by the German general staff. The infantry battle in Flanders, the statement adds, has thus opened.

RUSSIANS MAKE A GAIN.

Petrograd, July 31.—North of Huysatian on the Russo-Galician frontier the Russians restored their position on the east bank of the river Zebrowze, says the official statement today. Austro-German efforts to force a passage across the Zebrowze in the region of Pukliany and Podlipie were frustrated.

KAISER AT RIGA FRONT.

Copenhagen, July 31.—A dispatch from Berlin says Emperor William left Mitau, twentyfive miles southwest of Riga, Russia, and went down the river to the Riga front, where he complimented the troops.

PERSHING GOES TO CAMP.

Paris, July 31.—Major General Pershing left Paris this afternoon for his first inspection of the American training camp. He will be gone a few days.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY'S WAR NEWS

Warneton, south of the Messines area, which the British won in their smashing attack last month, takes in that area and the westerly bend in the line west of Ypres and extends at least as far north as Dixmude.

Particularly brilliant work was accomplished on the stretch of Apay, ten miles between Dixmude and Boesinghe, where two lines of German trenches were taken after fighting over tremendously difficult ground.

Advices from the front indicate a strong concentration of fresh German troops and heavy artillery facing the attacking forces but the morale of the Germans is reported not up to the old mark.

On the eastern front, while the Russians are evidently now making a determined stand against the Teutons at most points, the latter are still pressing forward. Russian anxiety to protect the holdings of territory in Bukowina are particularly evident but even here Berlin today reports a defeat for the Russians, who were forced after a battle to abandon their line along the Cheremosh, in the western part of the crown land. The breaking of Russian resistance in the wooded Carpathians and Teutonic advances near the Galician east frontier also are reported. In all more than two million Russian troops are said to be engaged in the great retreat. Conditions with the Seventh army, in which the traitorous developments which caused the Russian line to break were most manifest, are reported to be notably improving as the result of summary executions of deserters, spies and agitators.

$155,500,000 to at least $270,000,000, with the increase of $90,000,000 from distilled spirits and $25,000,000 from beer.

Senator Simmons also stated that wine taxes also would be increased but a decision as to the rate was not made. The committee plans, however, to raise $8,000,000 more revenue from wines, more than double the new taxes proposed in the original bill, estimated to yield $6,000,000.

Increase of consumption taxes on sugar and coffee were discussed again today but decision was postponed.

In revising the liquor schedules the committee estimated that adding $1 per gallon to the tax on distilled spirits, making it $3.20 per gallon—$2.10 over the present law—$90,000,000 more revenue would be secured from that source. The increase of 50 cents a barrel on beer was estimated to yield $25,000,000 more revenue, making the beer tax $3.25 per barrel, as compared with $1.50 under the existing law and $2.75 as originally provided in the bill.

PROMISE FOR FOOD MEASURE

and reach a complete agreement on the bill for a rpeort to the house tomorrow. The recess was taken to enable the conferees to confer with senate and house leaders and learn if the senate would reject the conference repor tshould the provision be eliminated. The conferees struck out a provision authorizing the government to commandeer gasoline lines for military or public defense.

The new provision for a wheat price fixing board of three members, inserted subject to reconsideration, was left unchanged.

NO ONE BADLY HURT.

New York, July 31.—The snapping of a gang plank leading from a new battleship at the New York navy yard precipitated a score or more of workmen into the water this afternoon, injuring a number, but all were rescued. None was injured seriously. First report had it that a number were drowned.

NO RELIEF PROMISED.

Washington, July 31.—The most intense hot wave of the year continued todaay in the central valleys, the middle Atlantic states, New England and the lower lake region. Weather bureau officials held out no promise of relief during the next two days, but local thundershowers may bring temporary relief at some points.

TASTY PUDDING TO SERVE DURING HOT WEATHER.

Cook until the syrup will spin a thread a cupful each of water and sugar. Have ready the well beaten yolks of four eggs, stir into the cooked syrup little by little, and return to the fire. Cook until quite thick, beat until cool, then add a level tablespoonful of gelatine that has been soaked for a half hour in two tablespoonsful milk and water, then soften over tea kettle. Beat again until thick, add a pint of cream that has been scalded and cooled or whipped, then freeze; when ready to pack in a mold or in a freezer add a pound of candied fruit cut in small pieces. Let stand a couple of hours at least before serving. A half cupful of sherry or rum adds to the flavor.

German Shipping Having a Revival

Rotterdam, Netherlands, July 31.—A revival in German shipping is the latest curious feature of Rotterdam's water traffic. No fewer than fourteen German steamships arrived in port within forty-eight hours a day or two ago. Their occupation is perhaps still more strange, for, coming in ballast, they are engaged in loading German coal at Rotterdam and carrying it to German, Swedish and Norwegian ports. The coal is mostly brought down the Rhine in barges, the object achieved by this latest move being a lightening of the overburdened German railways, where, on top of the pressure of war's demands, has come the shortage of rolling stock due to the increased wear and tear resulting from lack of sufficient lubricating oil.

The new idea was first tested. One or two vessels laid up at Rotterdam were loaded with coal and put to sea. Hugging the coast, they arrived safely at Emden. Then an occasional German ship arrived to take a cargo of coal. The experiment proved successful.

GOOD CROP NEWS IS FACTOR IN PRICES

Big Corn States Report an Outlook That Helps the Bears.

Chicago, July 31.—Favorable crop reports from a majority of the big surplus producing states gave an advantage today to the bears in the corn market. Opening prices, which ranged from unchanged figures to ⅝c lower, with September at $1.63¾ and December at $1.18¼ to $1.18¾, were followed by something of a rally but then a fresh downturn.

Most of the trading in wheat consisted of last day evening up of July contracts by scattered shorts. The market opened 2c to 3c higher at $2.64 to $2.65 July, and clung persistently to the upper level.

Lightness of the July delivery was a feature in the oats trade.

Commission house demand for lard developed to a sufficient extent to lift the provision market in general.

STOCK MARKET HAS DAY OF SOME LIFE

Motors Start Movement of Some Strength and Rails Finally Share It.

New York, July 31.—Motor shares supplied much of the strength of the early dealings, that group gaining one or two points. United Cigars, Mexican Petroleum, Ice preferred, and shippings represented the other active and firm features. Equipments and distinctive war issues were fractionally better, but rails and metals moved narrowly when at all.

Trading became more animated later, rails and metals joining the general advance. Coalers strengthened on the ruling granting higher rates in western and southern territories. Motors reacted slightly with United States Steel, but active equipments registered further improvement. The bond market was irregular, Liberty 3½s changing hands at 99.40 to 99.45.

HAD DESIGNS ON JOHN D.

New York, July 31.—Accused of making threats against the lives of J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and his son, John D. Rockefeller, jr., a man who said he was Elie Koodinopf, a naturalized citizen born in Russia, was arrested today. He had been watched for a week by police headquarters detectives.

The Greatest Time and Money Saver

We think of railroads, telephones, the telegraph, the wireless,—but how about WANT ADS?

They are in the same class. It used to be when a man wanted help he had to ask among his friends where he could get a good stenographer, bookkeeper, etc. Today he puts in a WANT AD and tomorrow he has only to choose from a dozen or more.

He has furniture to sell—a WANT AD brings many buyers.

He has a house to rent—a WANT AD rents it—he has a house to sell—a WANT AD sells it.

RELIEF IN SIGHT ON WEATHER MAP

Youthful Population of City Seek Relief From Heat in Swimming Pools.

A barometric low, looming up in the middle west on the weather map in the government weather bureau station, brought with it the expectation of relief from the heat by the sweltering public of Fort Wayne, Tuesday morning.

It is probable that Tuesday night will bring with it thunder showers which will undoubtedly bring temporary relief. Fair weather is again expected for Wednesday.

Relaization of living through temperatures of 95 degrees Monday afternoon caused people to wonder just what Tuesday had in store for them. It was believed by indications of temperatures at earlier hours that the mercury would rise higher than on Monday. It is believed that the thermometer would register 96 degrees Tuesday afternoon.

The 95 degree mark was reached between 3 and 4 o'clock, standard time, Monday afternoon.

The youthful population of the city by the hundreds sought relief from the heat Monday and Tuesday by enjoying the water in various places in the city termed by them as swimming pools. Lakeside lake was filled all afternoon with bathers while Spy Run creek in Lawton park also attracted hundreds. The Maumee, St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers also was inhabited by swimmers during the greater part of the day.

GROCER FINED FOR GIVING SHORT WEIGHT

William F. Hitzeman Gave 9¼ Pounds of Sugar for Ten Pounds.

William F. Hitzeman, Maumee avenue grocer, was fined $10 and costs on a charge of giving short weight. In police court it was alleged Hitzeman delivered 9¼ pounds of sugar when 10 pounds of the substance was paid for.

Robert E. Fox testified that he had purchased the sugar and paid Hitzeman for it. Barry Tolan, city sealer, told of weighing the sugar and finding it to be short weight. Hitzeman's attorney made a vain effort to have the case set aside because the deputy prosecutor wrote "one and one quarter pounds" in the affidavit where "nine and a quarter" should have been.

"Such technicalities are minor matters in war time," said Judge Kerr. "We must have justice for the people who buy sugar and coal and other necessities. Prices are so high that no tampering with weight can be allowed."

Mrs. Strieby, 1716 Koch street, wife of the Bloomingdale tailor, was operated upon at St. Joseph hospital Monday. She is getting along nicely.

Chapter I.

Georgie was a strong man. He had been a great strong baby. And from the first he had been successful with women. When he was but 17 months old he looked upon the little daughter a neighbor with favor, and crushed her in his arms without further ado. When she came out of the hospital with her two ribs mended she was Georgie's devoted admirer.

Chapter II.

At school Georgie was the recipient of many admiring glances from the little girls, as well as some of the older ones. "He is such a big manly boy," they used to say. "Don't you just LOVE big manly boys?" Then they would titter among themselves and cast rich arch glances at Georgie.

Georgie, not being insensible to this, used to stick out his tongue at them, which added to their admiration. Finally he was tired of being pestered by these feminine children, and one recess he decided to try heroic methods. So he crushed them in his great strong boy's arms one after another in rapid succession, kissing each of them full on the mouth. Whereupon they ran away weeping.

Chapter III.

But Georgie Porgie—this latter name added to him because one of the girls he had kissed called him a poor fish—discovered, to his amazement that this wholesale osculatory performance of his did not seem to detract from his popularity. The girls spoke of him as that "great, rude, rough Georgie," but they certainly did fall for him hard in their inner hearts. Which explains a good deal of Georgie's growing theory that the way to handle girls was to "Treat 'em Rough!"

Chapter IV.

So he treated 'em rough and became a hellion among the dames.

Chapter V.

Until he met a pretty blue-eyed thing and knew he was a goner. He started the cave man method with her, too, but she said "Nix, nix, child. None of the club and troglodite stuff goes here. You've put it over on the others because they were used to the lah da dah line, but me—I've been bullied by my father and my brother ever since I first saw the rosy dawn, and believe me the kid that wins this flapper has got to be NICE—willing slave and humble servant, tremble-at-my-slightest-now type. Are you It?"

Chapter VI.

Georgie Porgie was It. And he is now known as the champion tame husband of Evanston, Ill. But he thinks that everybody believes him when he tells how he puts the Cave Man stuff over on his wife.

NO P. O. MEN ARE GOING TO ENLIST

Services Are More Badly Needed Here Than at the Front.

Postal employes will not be exempt from military service unless they have affidavits signed by the postmaster.

Fort Wayne clerks and carriers have thought they were not liable. It is pointed out, however, that the draft rules and regulations sent to the exemption boards say the postmaster or someone having direct supervision of each office must certify that a man cannot be spared.

Each affidavit must state that such employe cannot be replaced without loss of efficiency. This alone will excuse an employe. It is not likely that any of the employes of the local postoffice will have to go inasmuch as their services are more badly needed in their official capacity in handling of mail than at the front at the present time.

In connection with high pressure over the south Atlantic and east gulf states and a low area central in the upper Mississippi valley, high tempcatures persist in central and eastern sections. A high area which is moving inland over the north Pacific states is attended by moderate temperatures in the districts to the westward of the Rockies. Except that local showers have occurred in the southeast, in the lake Superior region and in the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, the weather has been generally fair during the last 24 hours.

GARRETT NEWS.

Garrett, Ind., July 31—The junior choir of the Methodist church went to the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Franks south of this city Monday evening where they enjoyed a lawn party. They made the trip to this pleasant home via autos and walked home a distance of two and a half miles. Among the pleasant features of the evening were a good pot luck supper and a marsh mallow roast. Friday the same crowd will go to Rome City, where they will be guests of Rev. Charles Tinkham and family.

Miss Marjorie Graf returned to her home at Butler today after a three weeks' visit with her cousin, Miss Helen McDonald.

Miss Vesta Marvin entertained the I-Yo-Ki-Hi campfire girls Monday evening at a council fire held on the lawn at her home. Miss Grace Lige was taken into the camp at this meeting.

Ferris Bruce, of Gary, is here spending a few days and assisting his mother in moving their household goods to Gary, where they will make their future home.

Mrs. B. D. Largent returned to her home on Guilford street after being a patient at Sacred Heart hospital for three weeks.

FORT WAYNE DOGS PROTEST AGAINST STARVATION DIET

America's dogs are starving!

Dogs of Fort Wayne declare that is true, basing their statements on word received from leading dogs in all the large cities.

A. Fido Towser today told a reporter of The Sentinel the situation has reached such a serious condition that retaliatory measures may be necessary. He hinted they would be drastic.

"Right here in Fort Wayne," said Towser, "thousands of our best dogs are getting insufficient food. I am personally acquainted with many dogs that have not had a decent meal in a month.

"In most of the alleys running off from Berry street, there is no longer a decent meal to be found for even a small dog, let alone the big dogs. Garbage cans that used to be good for a fat bone any day in the week now seldom procure one a week.

"In the old days most of the cans also contained bits of meat, chunks of bread and often various finer delicacies. These are seldom found now. Just last night I visited one of our best known garbage cans and found in it nothing but a piece of string, some onion tops and a broken bottle of spoiled catsup. In a whole night's search I found scarcely enough to take away the sharpest pangs of hunger.

"This situation cannot last much longer. We cannot permit our dogs to starve. Since people have begun to cut out what they call waste there is nothing for us. We have no poorhouse to go to. There is no refuge for us.

"We are considering a national convention at which an attempt will be made to devise plans for feeding American dogs during the war.

"Our American dogs are as patriotic as could be wished. They are willing to make any necessary sacrifice gladly, but they are not willing to be starved to death by the acts of people, who, though they mean well enough in keeping food out of the garbage cans, are causing dogdom to travel the brink of starvation.

"Something has to be done about it. We refuse to starve.

"If we could live on tin cans, as goats do, it would not be so bad. But we must have food. Dogdom demands relief. We hesitate to coerce; we don't want to bite if barking will get us food; but bite we will, if bite must be!"

It is reported the mayor will lay the matter before the council.

FIFTY-THREE POTATOES COME FROM ONE HILL

Farmer on Glendale Acres Believes This Is a Record Yield.

There will be no shortage in the potato crop this year, if all the patches yield in the same proportion as that of M. B. Houser, who is a tenant on the Glenndale avres, located four miles southwest of the city. He reported Tuesday morning that when he dug up one hill on his land, he found fifty-three potatoes. He stated that they were not small ones, and that the smallest was the size of a hen's egg. The spuds were planted on May 12 and were raised on high ground. They are what is known as Rural New Yorks.

Mr. Houser stated that his entire potato patch of two acres is yielding well, but that the yield of fifty-three from the one hill was the best that he had found. The land on which they were raised is owned by O. F. Langford.

PREMIER REJECTS RESOLUTION.

Paris, July 31.—Premier Ribot in the chamber of deputies yesterday refused to accept a resolution by Ferdinand Bouisson, which said that the chamber considered that members of parliament should not be charged with the purchase of ships or commercial affairs as it indirectly blamed Captain Andre Tardieu, who is now in the United States on a mission for the French government. Premier Ribot simply moved that the chamber pass to the next business of the day which was carried by 200 votes against 157.

Movie Actresses and Their Hair

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of canthrox (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier that it looks much heavier than it is, while its lustre and softness is delightful.—Ad-ertisement.

AUTO POKER; OH, CECIL!

"Raise you a red!"

"Get your ante in!"

"I called."

Ever play auto poker? It's simple at ten miles an hour on low gear, and exciting at forty miles, with the throttle wide open.

List for the property man: One curbstone, not too cold to sit on; leisure to sit there; pads of paper and pencils; passing autos conforming to the law requiring tags; poker chips or substitutes.

Players are numbered in order on the curbstone. Player No. 1 takes the first car that passes, player No. 2 the second, and so on.

The license number of the first car is player number 1's hand. Having anted, he opens and bids. The license number of car number 2 is the second player's hand, etc.

On the second round, or flight, of automobiles the first car is the first player's draw, with which he fills his hand, the second car the second player's draw.

The same human ingenuity that devised poker will furnish variations. For instance, the state initial can be run wild as an ace.

It is the new form of curb broking, and many fortunes may change hands through it before aeroplanes supersede autos.

One Hoboken firm is thinking of going into the business of supplying curb cushions for auto poker players.

HARVEST FIELDS ARE DEMANDING MUCH AID

Farm Hands Are Getting Scarcer and Demand Growing Greater Each Day.

Harvest fields in Allen county and adjacent counties are demanding much attention at present and farmers are greatly handicapped on account of the lack of help.

Fred C. Schmeling, in charge of the Fort Wayne branch of the free employment bureau, states that farm hands are getting scarcer every day, while the demand is growing greater and wages offered larger.

At the present time thirty-three places are awaiting application in the free employment office.

Wages on all jobs are going sky high. On the bulletin board Tuesday morning appeared a want for four laborers who would be paid from $3 to $5 a day. No one had applied late Tuesday afternoon for the positions.

CRUEL FATHER FAILS TO INTIMIDATE JUDGE

Frank Finney Gets Month in Jail and Fine for Assault.

The unquestioned despot of his home is Frank Finney, 40, who lives near the city limits on Russel avenue. All the courageous spirit of his wife has been lost in the fifteen years of associating with the cruel man. The woman moves like one in a stupor and as one from whom personal ambition has been beaten out. The three daughters of Finney are nerve shocked and frail.

Finney was arranged in police court on a charge of assault and battery Wednesday morning. He had been arrested upon complaint of neighbors who told that he had savagely beaten his nine year old daughter, May, on Monday afternoon. No voice of protest has dared to come from the cowered members of Finney's family.

Attorney Frank Kleekamp represented Finney in the trial. There was little defense to offer after members of the family had reluctantly told of brutal attacks of the father.

Mrs. Finney, a mere shadow of a woman, was called to the stand. She told of finding the dark blue mark on her daughter's back after she had returned home from work Monday.

"Your husband has beaten you also, hasn't he?" queried Deputy Prosecutor Hoffman.

"Yes, but that makes no difference," came the faint reply.

In answer to a direct question Mrs. Finney admits that she does not know how many times her husband has struck her.

May, aged nine, a dwarfed, thin, sweet eyed little girl, was questioned. She explained that she had followed her father's orders and had washed his dirty socks Monday. Then she mended the socks, she told. Finally she asked to go to the show. Her father struck her on the head and back at that time, she said. Neighbors who saw the pitiless assault called police.

May has a blue mark on her forehead, a brand which will go with her through life, and which results from her father pushing her against the stove one day last winter when the mother was sick and the little girl was trying to get breakfast for the thankless father.

Judge H. W. Kerr started a bitter prelection as soon as Attorney Kleekamp rested his case and the father had said he did not care to testify.

"If I ever hear of such treatment from you again your family will not see your brutal face for many months," saidthe judge.

Finney was fined $10 and sentenced to thirty days in jail. He will be in jail for a month and a half.

GLASS JARS IN GREAT DEMAND

People Purchase Fruit Cans Who Have Never Bought Them Before.

CANNING RUBBERS FIND READY SALE

Ft. Wayne Housewives Show Patriotism in Aiding Food Conservation.

Glass fruit jars and rubber rings are in great demand all over Fort Wayne and merchants state that people who never thought of fruit jars and canning rubbers before are now purchasing them by the dozen lots.

One merchant who deals heavily in this kind of ware stated that he had sold more fruit jars and rubbers thus far this year than he had during the entire season in former years.

Prices on these goods have not advanced much over last season's price, regardless of the fact that the demand is much greater. One Fort Wayne merchant stated Tuesday morning that he had received reliable information that glass factories which manufacture the jars are working night and day to satisfy the great demand all over the country.

Within the inside circle of these facts comes the happy realization that Fort Wayne women particularly are demonstrating their loyalty to their country by aiding materially in the conservation of food which has been urged by leaders throughout the United States.

The rush to can fruits and vegetables also comes as a result of the canning demonstrations which were given in this city by a Purdue representative under the auspices of the food relief committee and the economics department of the Women's Club League.

DIVER ARRIVES TO SEARCH FOR BODY

States He Will Find Edward Huber in Three Hours' Time.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Angola, Ind., Aug. 1.—A diver from the Great Lakes Towing station, at Toledo, arrived here Wednesday afternoon with his outfit to resume the abandoned search for the body of Edward Huber, of Fort Wayne, who drowned at Lake James Sunday afternoon.

He immediately went to the scene of the drowning and after looking over the situation stated he would have the body to the surface in three hours time after he began his work.

All efforts on the part of the searchers who have labored for two days were futile. Fifty pounds of dynamite were used in an effort to bring the body up. People who are acquainted with the lake state that at the place where Huber is supposed to have drowned no one has ever touched bottom.

The mother of the drowned boy, nearly frantic with grief, implored the husband to secure the services of the diver, who arrived today.

MILLIONS OF STEEL PROFITS TO NATION

Excess Profits Tax Brings Over $53,000,000 Into Federal Treasury.

New York, Aug. 1.—The enormous sums which the big industrial companies of the country will pay to the government in the form of excess profits and income taxes was strikingly illustrated when the United States Steel corporation issued its financial statement for the second quarter of the year. Total earnings for that period were reduced to $90,579,204, after deducting $53,918,872, or about 37 per cent., as the amount which it is estimated will be turned over to the government.

An additional allowance of $33,$65,000 was set aside from earnings of the first quarter of the year for war taxes and excess profits, that amount being based on the tax proposed early in July, but not yet finally adopted.

But for the huge tax to be imposed by the government, total earnings of the steel corporation for the second quarter would have amounted to $144,498,076, exceeding the previous high record of the preceding quarter by more than $31,000,000.

Net income for the second quarter fell by reason of the heavy tax appropriations from $103,330,194 of March 31 last to $74,425,053 and $40,965,761 surplus for the quarter compared with $63,836,931 three months ago.

Monthly earnings of the corporation for the second quarter show a steady decline compared with those of the first three months. June, for example, amounted to only $32,027,300, as against $44,377,393 in March. This apparent reversal is accounted for, however, by the attitude adopted by the corporation, which rejected much new business to meet possible demands of the home government.

The extent to which the corporation is preparing for all eventualities is disclosed in the statement that during the first six months of the current year $43,000,000 was expended for new construction and additions to its many subsidiaries.

On the basis of the taxes already set aside, the steel corporation expects to turn over to the government during the present year approximately $200,000,000. This exceeds total earnings of almost any year prior to 1916, but leaves a balance, at the present rate of almost 50 per cent. applicable to the common stock.

The usual dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred stock and 1¼ per cent. on common were declared, with an "extra" 3 per cent. on the common, as in the previous quarter.

Post by a trusty, probably saved the Union county jail from destruction by fire yesterday, Thomas Hughes, held on a charge of forgery, being accused of the attempt to burn the jail. The fire burned the roof off the kitchen of the jail and filled the building with smoke, making necessary the transfer of twenty prisoners to other buildings. ATTEMPTED SUICIDE MAY PROVE FAILURE

While Condition Is Serious, Imogene Myers Has a Chance for Recovery.

While her condition continues critical, Imogene Myers, who attempted suicide late Tuesday afternoon by swallowing a quantity of bichloride of mercury tablets, was thought to be resting easier Wednesday afternoon at St. Joseph hospital. The attending physician says she has a chance for recovery.

The girl, who came into the limelight in connection with the case of John H. (Sammy) Koehler, who was found guilty in the circuit court of criminally assaulting her, suffers intensely. That it was bichloride of mercury that she took has been fully established, it is said. At first there was some disposition to doubt it. Bichloride of mercury acts slowly and for that reason the outcome cannot be determined.

The girl took the poison while her mother, Mrs. Florence Pettit, her grandmother, Mrs. Ike Dollarhite, and her aunt, Blanche Dollarhite, were drinking at the fountain. Ten minutes later she complained of severe pains in her stomach. Ten more minutes spent in the rest room of the court house brought no relief. She was then taken to the office of Dr. J. W. Bowers, where only a half hour previously she had had her burned fingers treated.

At the doctor's office she refused to tell what she had taken and it required the assistance of another man to administer an antidote because of her resistance.

Imogene is said to have burned her hands some time early Sunday morning when she slid down a rope from her room. She did not return home until several hours later.

After escaping from her home, Imogene went direct to the home of Mrs. Emma Henning, Koehler's sister, at 712 Ewing street, to the surprise of Mrs. Henning, who had no previous knowledge of her coming. Another witness, whose name has not been revealed, was present during the entire time Imogene was at the Henning home. So far as Koehler is concerned he did not see the girl and has not been at the Henning home for several weeks.

Immediately upon the girl's arrival there, which was about midnight, Saturday, Mrs. Henning called Judge S. M. Hench, her attorney, at his apartments, and asked him what she should do. The judge told her to send her home, which she did. The girl's hands were bleeding profusely from the cuts and burns sustained in sliding down the rope at her mother's home. Mrs. Henning dressed them as best she could, then virtually made the girl return to her mother, though she protested vigorously.

Imogene has talked of taking her life several times. She told a newspaper representative who interviewed her at the county jail where she was held previous to the trial that she wished she was dead. She also is alleged to have asked her aunt, Blanche Dollarhite, to take the poison with her and make it a double tragedy.
